A law lecturer at the Lagos State University, LASU, Gbenga Ojo has denied involvement in the alleged murder of a two-year old girl, Racheal, who allegedly fell into a deep well last week in Egbeda.

Ojo wrote a petition to the Assistant Inspector General of Police, AIG, Onikan and also sent a copy of to the Vice Chancellor of LASU.

In the petition, Ojo claimed that his photograph was maliciously used to illustrate a story published online in Naijagists.com, indicating that he was the one involved in the incident.

He therefore prayed the AIG to use his office to investigate the allegations, unmask the faceless blackmailers and bring them to book.

In his account, he narrated that one Gbenga who shared his name is a staff of the Lagos State University, Lagos, while his wife, Busayo works at the Ministry of Finance and lives in Abeokuta, Ogun state adding that the couple have two children, a boy and girl.

It was earlier reported that two year old girl, Racheal lived with her father at 8, Jesse Street, Egbeda, against the wish of his wife Busayo. It was while she was playing in the compound that she allegedly fell into 80 feet well and died.

The matter was reported at Gowon Estate, Police Station, where the D.P.O begged them to bury the corpse. He added that the whole story was put on the internet, and they illustrated the story with the lecturer picture as the Gbenga involved in the incident in the publication uploaded on the 21st April, 2016.

Denying the allegation, the lecturer said: "It is true, my name is Gbenga. It is also true that, I lecture at Lagos State University Ojo. In fact, I lecture law. But definitely, I am not Gbenga referred to in the story. I do not know any Busayo or Racheal. I am not married to any Busayo. I do not have a daughter by name Racheal. I do not have a two years old daughter for that matter."

He also denying ever having anything to do with the police investigation, claiming that, his picture was interposed maliciously, contrary to section 24(1)(b) and 24(2)(a) of the Cyber crime (Prohibition Prevention etc) Act 2015."
