

Confusion as repairer dies inside generator room in Ogun

OLAYINKA OLUKOYA - ABEOKUTA

A 24-year-old man, Toheeb Quadri, a generating set repairer, has been found dead in a controversial circumstance on Sunday inside the generator room of a residential building in Atoyo area of Sagamu, Ogun State.

Nigerian Tribune learnt that Quadri might have gone to repair his customer's generating set when the incident happened.

Missing 8-yr-old who disappeared from church found Handed over to dad

OLUWOLE IGE - OSOGBO

AUTHORITIES of the Nigeria Police, Osun State command, on Monday, in Osogbo, handed over a missing child identified

The body of the deceased was discovered by members of his family after they had searched everywhere for him.

The owner of the property, one Kelechi (surname withheld) was almost lynched by a mob when he allegedly feigned ignorance of the incident.

He was alleged to have denied knowledge of ever knowing the deceased.

This denial, according to accusing the pastors and worshippers on the mountain of kidnapping his son, contending that he only raised the alarm when he discovered that his son was missing.

what Nigerian Tribune gathered, further aggravated the situation, as the suspect's house was vandalised by the mob.

The suspect was said to have reported the matter at a nearby police station.

When contacted, the state Police Public Relations Officer, Abimbola Oyeyemi, confirmed the incident.

He said that the circumstances surrounding the death of Quadri were unquestionable, saying that the matter had been transferred to the homicide section at the command headquarters, Eleweran, Abeokuta.

Oyeyemi said that the body of the deceased had been deposited for autopsy.

Police arrest 24 suspects, rescue 4