By Michael Ovat-Awka

Another fire outbreak in Anambra State has claimed the lives of three female hotel workers at Otolu Nnewi, Anambra State.

The hotel workers were said to have been trapped in the inferno due to the fact that the room they occupied was locked and the owner of the hotel allegedly left with the keys.

Confirming the incident, the Commissioner of Police in Anambra State, John Bassey Abang, said it was true that three ladies died in the inferno.

Abang said that it was a drinking joint and the ladies who used to sleep there lost their lives in the inferno, describing the incident as unfortunate.

The Anambra police boss also confirmed that the owner of the hotel had made useful statements to the police.
