2 arrested for allegedly stabbing police inspector to death inside patrol van in Delta

Alphonsus Agborh | Asaba

TWO suspects have been arrested in connection with the stabbing to death of a police inspector inside a patrol van in Delta State.

The victim, identified only as William, was allegedly sleeping in a patrol vehicle at a check point by Obas-anjo Farms, Olor, along Ogwashe Uku-Ughelli highway last Thursday at about 8:00 p.m., when the incident occurred.

The state Commissioner of Police, Mohammed Hafiz Inuwa, told the Nigerian Tribune on Sunday that three members of the patrol team had also been arrested and were already helping the police in its investigation.

According to Inuwa, one of the suspects was nabbed in the bush with a knife by the police and members of the community vigilance team few hours after the incident.

According to findings, the assailant sneaked into the vehicle, taking advantage of the night and attacked the inspector before taking his rifle.

Report further said that the attacker, whose target was the rifle, might have been monitoring the team before striking on that fateful night.
