Men of the Ondo State Police Command have arrested a middle aged man, identified as Naso, for allegedly stabbing his neighbour to death.

It was gathered that Naso and his neighbour, Seyi, who lived around High school area of Akure, had a minor disagreement which was settled by the residents of the area.

A reliable source in the community explained that the deceased accused Naso of insulting his wife which led to a serious argument.

He, however, said the matter was settled for the two men but the accused was dissatisfied, went into the deceased room while he was sleeping in the midnight and stabbed him to death.

He said residents of the area tried to rush the man to a nearby hospital but the young man gave up the ghost before getting to the clinic, as he was said to have bled to death before the neighbours could come to his aid.
