THE Ogun State Police command has said that a man identified as Hakeem Oladimeji, who was found dead in his vehicle with his yet-to-be-identified girl friend committed suicide.

The command's Public Relations Officer, Abimbola Oyeyemi, denied insinuation that the deceased found naked in a Sienna vehicle "died under the burning flame of romance."

He said Oladimeji had first killed the woman believed to be his girlfriend and thereafter drank a poisonous substance, adding that the remains of the deceased had been evacuated and deposited in a hospital morgue.

Nigerian Tribune learnt that passers-by discovered the bodies of the man and the woman in the vehicle parked along Mowe/Ibafo on Lagos-Ibadan expressway.

The Sienna vehicle with registration LAGOS LSD 992

HH was reported to have been at the same spot for about two days, while the residents out of curiosity peeped into the vehicle and found the lifeless bodies.

Oyeyemi said, "The two did not die while having sex. What happened was that the girl in question happened to be a girlfriend to that man. He rented an apartment for her somewhere in Lagos. He went there to visit her. We don't know what transpired between them, but we learnt he hit the woman on the head and she slumped.

He dropped a suicide note, informing his wife that he had killed somebody.

"He told his wife not to bother looking for him, asking her to take care of the children. Then he left the house. He drove and parked near NASFAT area and he committed suicide there. We saw a container of sniper in the vehicle, which suggested that he drank an insecticide. He wound up the glasses and died in the vehicle. So, it is a case of murder and suicide."
