

Chinese man kills ex lover in Kano

Kola Oyelere | Kano

A Chinese national identified as Mr Geng, on Friday night, allegedly slaughtered his ex-lover, Ummukulsum Buhari at Kuntau, Janbullo general area of Kano metropolis.

Sunday Tribune investigation revealed that the lady, a graduate of Agriculture Science from Kampala University, Uganda, is currently on one-year compulsory service of the National Youth Service scheme in Sokoto.

According to an eyewitness, who preferred anonymity, Mr Geng had a relationship with the young lady for two years before she settled for another man within the city.

It was, however, learnt that Buhari's marriage never lasted, and she was said to have returned to her family house to continue her normal life.

The eyewitness further disclosed that Mr Geng, who felt jilted by Buhari, never let go until that night when he allegedly scaled the perimeter fence, sneaked into her room and murdered her in cold blood.

However, family members and neighbours reportedly tried to save her life and took her to the nearby health facility where she reportedly gave up the ghost.

Geng was subsequently arrested by a mob that were set to kill him before a combined team of the police and the immigration officials arrived to restore normalcy.

As of the time of filling this report, the Kano State Police Command is yet to comment over the incident but a reliable source from security command stated that Geng has been taken into custody.
