A fatal motor accident has claimed the life of a woman, the bus driver, and three others in Imo State

The four persons were said to have lost their lives after a truck collided with a fully loaded mini-bus along the Akabo axis of Okigwe road in Imo State on Friday evening.

The truck whose driver was said to have escaped was reportedly set on fire by an angry mob around 9 pm, on Friday.

An eyewitness said the minibus driver, who was a woman, as well as three passengers died on the spot, while others sustained various degrees of injuries.

An indigene of the Akabo community said on condition of anonymity that the woman driver was trying to overtake the truck when it kissed the heavy-duty truck from behind, which forced it into the bush.

He said: "The mini-bus was fully loaded and the woman driver, on trying to overtake the truck route Owerri, the car hit it from behind and tumbled into the bush.
