ARMED robbers in the early hours of Thursday invaded the residence of a Lagos-based popular comedian, Mr. Gbenga Adeyinka, and killed his security guard.

Apart from the guard identified as Ade Aluko, Adeyinka was also said to have sustained minor injuries as the hoodlums reportedly hit him on the head with a bottle of gin removed from his bar.

The bandits numbering about eight, including two females, reportedly arrived at the comedian's Zion Close, off Ibeshe Road, Ikorodu residence about 4am shortly after he returned from a social event.

They reportedly gained access to the bungalow by breaking the wall and cutting burglaries.

The robbers made away with the comedian's Nissan Armanda Sport Utility Van, mobile telephone handsets, money and his wife's jewelry among other valuables.

The Lagos State Police Command's spokesman, Mr. Frank Mba, confirmed the raid but said that Adeyinka's stolen car had since been recovered from the fleeing robbers.

"The recovered car is in Owutu Police Station. The suspects forgot a few of their personal effects in the car. The items are helping us in our investigation and we are hopeful that we shall apprehend them," he said.

Mba advised Lagosians to always take advantage of the telephone numbers of top police officers published by the Lagos State Government to always alert the police of any ugly development.
