Gunmen kill four policemen at IG's house

February 24, 2012 by Adelani Adepegba, Mike Odiegwu and Mustapha Saliu 138 Comments

GUNMEN suspected to be members of the terrorist Islamic sect, Boko Haram, on Thursday killed four policemen and injured another two near the house of the Acting Inspector-General of Police, Mohammed Abubakar.

In Minna, Niger State, some gunmen suspected to be members of the sect similarly killed two policemen.

Also, a bomb suspected to have been planted by the sect was discovered at the St. Mary's Catholic Church, located on Church Road, Minna, by members who attended the Ash Wednesday mass.

On Christmas Day last year, Boko Haram bombs killed 44 parishioners at the St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Madalla, also in Niger State.

The incidents coincided with a comment by a senior United States diplomat that the country would not provide military assistance to Nigeria in its battle against Boko Haram.

The US ambassador, Terence McCulley, who spoke to the Associated Press, said he would rather encourage the Federal Government to reach out to residents in the affected northern states while using security forces to target and apprehend terrorists.

The Kano attack took place during the morning rush hours along BUK Road.

Eyewitnesses' accounts indicated that the gunmen, riding on four motorcycles, opened fire on the policemen said to be guarding the residence of the IG and killed four of them.

A statement by the spokesman for the Kano State police command, Magaji Majiya, confirmed the incident but said only two policemen were killed in the attack.

Majiya said 15 suspects had been arrested in connection with the attack.

The statement reads, "Today Thursday 23rd February, 2012 at about 0830hrs along BUK Road by Island after Gidan Murtala, unknown gunmen on four motorcycles attacked our policemen on foot patrol.

"As a result of the attack two died on the spot while two were injured and are now receiving treatment at the hospital."

The statement adds that the area of the attack has been 'thoroughly combed' and that investigation into the incident has commenced.

Our correspondent in Kano reports that shortly after the attack, surveillance helicopters hovered above the area.

In the Minna incident, THE PUNCH learnt that the gunmen, also riding on motorcycles, opened fire at two policemen at a point near a Nigerian National Petroleum Corporation mega station.

Two of the policemen reportedly died on the spot while another sustained injury and was rushed to an undisclosed nearby hospital.

The injured officer, eyewitnesses said, only escaped death by a whisker because he had gone to buy sachet water when the attack occurred.

“Two men who were on a motorbike on sighting the policemen shot directly at them and killed two of them instantly. They carted away their rifles but other policemen ran to safety. One policeman who was coming back from where he went to buy sachet water was injured,” an eyewitness told our correspondent on Thursday.

The state Police Public Relations Officer, Richard Oguche, confirmed the attack and said the police were on the trail of the killers. He added that the attackers were not members of Boko Haram but members of an aggrieved group out to avenge the detention of their members arrested after the prison break in Kogi State.

The explosives found at the St. Mary's Catholic Church in Suleja were reportedly kept inside a Ghana-Must-Go bag and hidden in a corner of the church premises. The bag was said to have been discovered by a member of the church who then raised the alarm.

Residents of Church Road told our correspondent on Thursday that the discovery of the explosives caused a stir in the area and it took the police anti-bomb squad searching the area to douse the fear of the residents.

Meanwhile, Terrence said the US was also considering opening a consulate in Kano to improve the country's image among a people still suspicious about Western influence. Boko Haram means 'Western education is evil.'

However, he was unequivocal when asked in the interview with the Associated Press whether U.S. troops should be deployed in Nigeria.

"That's not on the table. No, absolutely not," McCulley said.

The ambassador said the issue of Boko Haram was of great concern to the US.

"It's of a great concern to us. We've seen an increase in sophistication, we've seen increased lethality. We saw at least a part of the group has decided it's in their interest to attack the international community" he said.

McCulley said the U.S. was already working with the Nigerian police to help them learn how to carry out forensic investigations, while a bomb expert from the FBI has been working with authorities on how to detect explosives planted by the group before they detonate.

He said, "The U.S. also would be open to training Nigeria's military in counter-terror techniques, though the country hasn't asked for that assistance.

"It's not going to be solved exclusively by treating it as a security issue. It needs a holistic solution.

"Government needs clearly to have a targeted approach on security that targets the bad guys, that targets perpetrators of these horrible attacks and doesn't injure innocent civilians or damage property."

Fellow Nigerians, these police officers are citizens of Nigeria. They are somebody's sons, brothers, husbands and fathers. No matter what, they don't deserve to be slaughtered like wild antelopes. Some families are right now mourning. Government should come up with something more serious. A heed to the call of SNC will save many woes. This problem is not going to end just that easy in a country that is endemic to negligence and abandonment of citizen's right of basic needs. It is better to be in a war than to be caught in a cross fire.

Nobody is saying they fall from heaven however, the extra judicial from police's hands this year alone which is less than 60 days is on the rise. Should Nigeria be called a failed nation? Yes of cause. Can you imagine when the president and VP feed on N1B yearly, pension of RTD officers are not paid but in a fixed deposit acctount somewhere...Can you imagine having ghost workers as police officers and on their payroll... Is this not a problem? Anyway, my question is where are we heading to in Nigeria?

Now tell me who is saying that muslims in Nigeria have not started war with christians. So what they want is that we should avoid going to a place of worship for our living

God. Since this incidence, tell me how many mosque they have bomb. Today is the friday prayer while cant they bomb mosque. Please christians be vigilant as we have been persecuted in the past but our living GOD came to our rescue. What really bothers me most is that our Senators and house of rep are so selfish that they their action have been anti masses. The SNC called upon have been turn down by them . By the time this BH started killing their wives and Children they will realise the truth. This Nigeria thing is not working since some section of the country can not live in some part of the country he/she belongs. Housa Fulanis have been a turn in the flesh to this project call Nigeria. the dreaded Islamic sect could not continue thus far without the support, sponsor, shielding and encouragement of some northern govs, emirs, Islamic preachers, and notable Northern leaders. But the most worrisome matter is: WHY ARE THEY STILL OPPOSING SOVEREIGN NATIONAL CONFERENCE? They want a country where they can freely and unihibitedly practice their religion and way of life. They want Islamic banking with Sanusi as the governor. They want Shriaaaaaaaaaaaaaa. What is wrong with this very realistic demand? Why is it difficult for Ceroma, Atiku, Buhari, IBB and the rest to understand this. I promise the people of the South will not kill one person, not a soul to bring back Arewa Republic to the defunct Nigeria. Imans, where are you? Spread the news in the mosques. Our police men are lame ducks who lack the common intelligence to combat any form of criminality. This is a manifestation of the corruption that has eaten deep into the fabric of the Nigeria State (the police highly included). Issues of national importance such as security have been left in the hands of political sympathizers and sycophants. BH seems to be in charge of Nigeria right now and one is compelled to say Nigeria is in a state of anarchy. This is really sad.....God, save us

As the A I G said the police should stop all forms of road blocks, in Lagos some areas, police are still on the way extorting money from motorist at gun point, areas like Adeniji Adele Lagos Island, Isolo. The DPO,s must be called to order so that the institution as a body can concentrate on trianing and re-trianing to enable them defend themselves as well as the citizens of this country. Look at what has happened again Boko Haram killing police officers with impunity which is so sad. Supposing from the beginning, they adhere to what they are trianed to do and not mess themselves up with connivance with robbers, murderers, collecting tolls from motorist as if that was their primary job, then they could have been able to defend themselves better but now they have sold all their secret to them and as a result unable to tackle any violent situation . The Boko Haram knows police modus of operandi hence they appear smarter. Oga I.G make sure all the rotten officers who sell this institution to Boko Haram are all fish out and dismissed form the Force. For instaad of stop and search which they claim to do the reverse is the case begging for money from those who drive exotic cars either stolen or bought with ill gotten wealth.
