Restaurateur killed in Osogbo

July 9, 2012 by Tunde Odesola, Osogbo 27 Comments

A popular restaurateur based in Osogbo, Osun State, Mr. Tunde Bolarinwa, has been killed by gunmen.

Bolarinwa, who ran the popular Yetty Mama Restaurant on Odi-Olowo Road, Osogbo, with his wife, Yetunde, was killed by the gunmen, in the wee hours of Sunday at his Alekunwodo residence.

It was gathered that the killers, who came in a white car, scaled the fence of Bolarinwa family home and forced their way into the apartment around 1am.

They allegedly identified the husband and shot him several times before leaving without stealing any item.

PUNCH Metro learnt that Bolarinwa's family pleaded with the gunmen to spare him but the suspected assassins still went ahead and killed him.

Some residents, who spoke with our correspondent, explained that the gunmen operated for about 15 minutes.

A resident, who declined to give his name, said, "Before the operation, they overpowered the guard of the street. After they finished, they led the guard away to another street and took his phone from him.

"The sound of the killers'gun was very loud and frightening. Everybody shut their doors.

After they left, the whole street was thrown into pandemonium.”

The Police Public Relations Officer, Mrs. Sade Odoro, said investigation into the case had commenced, adding that the motive for the killing had yet to be determined.

Bolarinwa had worked at the Osun State Broadcasting Corporation as a junior officer before joining his wife to run the restaurant.

We have a toothless and weak president whose only interest is to continue to steal money from the nation's treasury. Nigerians from all facet of human endeavor must rise up and fight for their own security and safety to end the prevalence of the twin evils, Boko Haram and armed robbers.

Dr Hope, you want Jonathan to do the job of police agents in that area. Expect him when you are in a state of pandemonium or stress. Read well the contents of the story. They over powered the guards, who would have been the next people to contact? The police of course. Always fast to act in time of distress.

Let's go a little Theo-Mathematics. If the voice of the 'good' people should be acclaimed the voice of God going by our democracy, then it would be fool hardy to go on insults spree against our leaders especially Mr. President at the slightest of nothingness. It is not only unreasonable, blasphemous but very un-african. This is a wrong management of rights to speak. Always remember, put not your hands,tongues etc against the LORD's annointed. We cannever have angels as leaders but please criticize constructively & politely too. God bless Nigeria.

Going by the news..... they killed only the Man (their target), not even the guard or any other member of the family who were pleading with them and they did not steal even a pin from the house....this gives me serious concern. Something must be wrong somewhere, it's just unfortunate. Let us all have this always in our minds for as long as we remain on this earth that "He who must come to equity must always come with clean hands" I feel for the Man and I feel for all the bereaved. The good Lord will console them. God sees what human beings can not see. May his gentle soul rest in perfect peace. (Amen)

@ mickie,its not unreasonable to thnk and say d wife is a prime suspect...several thing must ve hapnd whc we mit not be aware of..cases like dis r numerous in d court of law...although sympathetically,it mit appear absurd acusng d wife considrng d fact dat she just lost her husband,but common,dis is a world whr a child presents his mother for money rituals,and a wife kills her husband so as to enjoy his wealth with her new lover... afterall,she is just a SUSPECT out of several other SUSPECTS
