Police accused of killing man five days after wedding

September 24, 2012 by Eniola Akinkuotu 355 Comments

The couple
| credits:

When on September 15, 2012, Ugochukwu Ozuah, married Joan, his girlfriend of nearly two years; family and friends rejoiced with them at The Redeemed Evangelical Mission, Lagos.

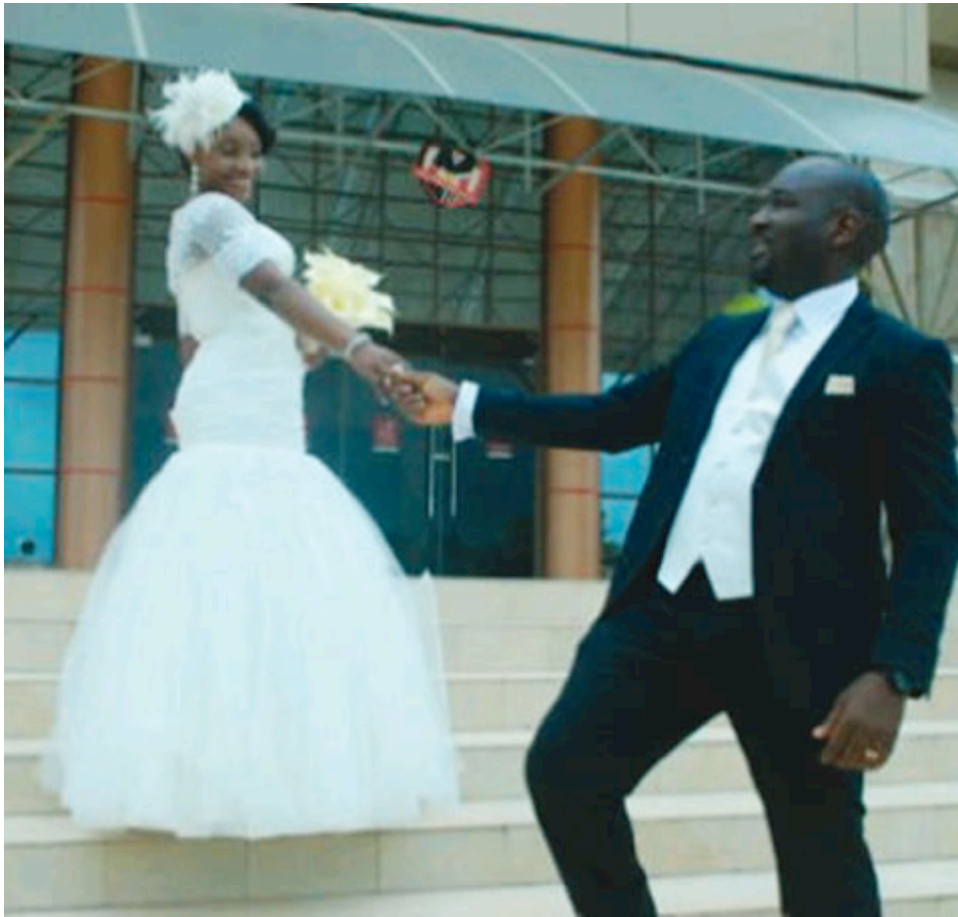

The 36-year-old man and Joan then stayed at the Whispering Palms, a beach resort in Badagry, for three days for their honeymoon.

The couple's joy was however cut short on September 20, 2012, when the groom was allegedly shot and killed by policemen attached to the Anthony Division.

Ozuah, an indigene of Anambra State and Mechanical Engineering Graduate of the University of Ado Ekiti, was allegedly killed close to the UPS Bus Stop along Oworonsoki-Oshodi Expressway while dropping his friend off.

The friend, Erikefe Omene, who came from the United Kingdom to attend the wedding, told PUNCH Metro that he still could not understand why the policemen shot the deceased.

He said, "I went to visit Ozuah at his house at Oke Olowo Estate on Thursday. When it was around 10pm, I wanted to leave but he said taxis were not allowed into the estate so he decided to drop me off outside the estate where I would get a taxi. We got into his car, a Honda CRV, and he drove out. As we approached the expressway, there was an ash/blue car that stopped around the same time to drop someone.

Ozuah and Joan on their wedding day

“An individual came out of the car which was now parked side by side with ours. Because of the manner with which it was parked, I didn’t know the type of car it was. Policemen approached the said car and I thought it was just a routine check so we didn’t pay it much attention.

“Ozuah parked the car and we both alighted so we could stop a taxi but before he to shut the door, one of the policemen said, ‘Who’s there? Who goes there?’ And shot Ozuah who then fell flat on the floor. Individuals from the ash/blue car suddenly ran behind Ozuah’s car to where I was and I thought the policemen might come around to shoot. So, I ran back into the estate.”

Omene said he went to the deceased’s house to inform his wife of what had happened. He said Joan, and her in-laws took another car and drove back to the scene.

He said upon returning to the scene about 10 to 20 minutes later, he saw more policemen standing near Ozuah who was lying down in a pool of his own blood.

He said, “By the time we arrived the scene, there were many policemen there. The Divisional Police Officer said he just received a phone call that someone was shot. I then told the DPO that it was a policeman that shot my friend. The DPO then asked me to explain and I narrated the story to him. He said, ‘Are you sure it wasn’t someone in black that shot your friend?’

“At this point, Ozuah’s wife started shouting that we should rush him to a hospital. Although he wasn’t moving, his body was still warm. So, we laid him on the backseat and her brother-in-law drove him down to the hospital.”

Omene said he remained with the DPO and reiterated what had happened but the DPO was adamant, saying the killers must have been armed robbers in police uniform.

Omene added that he and the DPO then drove to the hospital where the doctor said Ozuah was dead.

It was learnt that Omene immediately went to the police station where he wrote a statement.

Ozuah's remains were said to have been deposited at the morgue of Lagos State University Teaching Hospital, Ikeja

At the home of Nkechi, the deceased's elder sister, on Friday, sympathisers came in droves to condole with the family.

The deceased's younger sister, who wept bitterly, told our correspondent that Ozuah was, until his death, the only surviving son of the family.

“Our mother gave birth to three girls and two boys. One of our brothers died in 2008 and Ugochuckwu (Ozuah) was the only surviving son. Our father is late and when I got married three years ago, he (Ozuah) was the one who gave me away. It feels like a nightmare that he was killed just days after his wedding and he had no child. Our mother is still alive. What a tragedy,” she said.

Omene, who also wept profusely, described the deceased as a jovial and straightforward person.

When contacted, the spokesperson for the state police command, Ngozi Braide, said it was armed robbers that killed Ozuah and not the police.

Braide, in a text message, said, “No, it’s falsehood. The guy was actually killed by armed robbers in a Sports Utility Vehicle, not the police please.”

This Ngozi Braide should remember that God is always God and that he will pay everyone according to his works here and hereafter. The evidence before all Nigerians is overwhelming. why not rather conduct a thorough investigation before concluding that the guy was killed by robbers. or better still apprehend the robbers just to prove the innocence of the police. The evil that men do lives with them.

Well spoken this lady is always in a hurry to cover the crimes perpetrated by police, though the shooter is uncertain, but a proper investigation would had been conducted to know who actually shot this young man. it is so sad he could not enjoy his newly wedded life, RIP bros

For me, i think that friend he went to drop should be interrogated properly. What was he waiting for till 10pm at a newly wedded man's house when he knows that nigeria has no night life! Secondly if it was armed robbers as the police claimed, what did they stole from him. The killers are no doubt hired killers, wether police or armed men. If not i suspect his friend must have shot him. Could be they did a deal he did not get what he thought he deserved. That his friend must be questioned properly.

His newly wedded wife also should be questioned. Had any of her admirers sworn that instead anyone would have her he'd rather die?? The guy was killed by assassins i believe.

However, i'm not judging or concluding, just my opinion.

■ abiiodun johnson September 24, 2012 at 1:59 pm

The order of priority in this country sucks. When a man is shot, isn't it important to rush him to the hospital first? You left a man bleeding to death while you ran to call wife, wasting precious time writing report, then took the dying man to the hospital, what sort of order of importance is this?

Nowhere in Nigeria is safe, I just can't imagine a trained professional police officer acting as ignorant and uncivilized the way our police sometimes acts, this case to me is murder and heads should roll on this one, the Redeem Church should use all its God given power to follow up on successful prosecution of this case, this is sickening.

May God grant him eternal peace.

Life is not worth a penny in this country. It's short, worthless and brutish. Anybody can be killed at any time by anything or anybody and nothing.....nothing....will happen afterwards. Policemen were seen to have shot someone dead, their spokeswoman says its armed robbers in police uniform...What a country, what a people....Saddening.

Portharcourt road, Sokoto road Onitsha, Oma-Hausa Gariki...Enugu see how dirty those quarters are. And visit Igbo's quarters in Kano and LEKKI estate where Igbos reside.

.....When A policeman kill Igboman...it is termed..accidental discharge or Armed robbers in police uniform

.....When Boko Haram bomb churches and kill igbo people....it is termed religious crisis.

I kept saying this let us all seat down and talk....what is coming 2015. We igboS will rise to defend ourselves....NO CAMPAGAIN/ELECTION RALLY IN ANY IGBO STATES..

What is keeping Nigeria and make it look like there is still anything like Nigeria is b/c Igboman have not made up his mind to raise arm against this stupid entity called Nigeria again..learn from our last arm struggle.

@ Reginald, while I sympathise with what has happened, but how can you for certain prove that the men that shot and killed Mr Ozuah were Policemen, and not armed robbers? Is it no longer a fact that armed robbers sometimes dress up in Police uniforms? You claim also that the evidence is overwhelming, yet you ask for investigation. Sentiments aside, what is overwhelming about the evidence, please?

I'm not agreeing with the Police, and neither am I agreeing with you that the evidence conclusively points to the Police or proves that they are culpable. Besides, this is diversionary. The important point here is, why didn't the Police immediately take the shot person to the hospital? Perhaps, his life would have been saved. What waste! The Police must be responsive and proactive about saving lives.

3. why did he have to first of all run to the wife instead of acertaining if the guy was still breathing?
4. police move in atleast groups of 3-5,and cld be attached to a certain area, can he precisely say that a group/sqard attached to so & so area killed the freind.

I'm not a police spokes person infact if there any group of ppl i pray not to ve dealings with its the police but from his statement i believe he the freind has alot more questions to answer than anyone else.

In as much as I would have love to castigate the police, as it has become more or less their trademark. However, I am of the opinion that there might be more to the situation than meets the ordinary eye. Only a proper investigation could unravel the mistery and mind you, his friend that ran into the estate (while not attempting to be preemptive) should be properly investigated, you can not really deduce 'who is who' in this day in time. May the fortitude bear the irreplaceable lost and my your gentle soul rest in perfect peace.

@ kayode lagos and other people accusing the police,of killing the man didn't u read the story very well or will i said ur not educated and u can not even read,or is it normal hatred for the police,bcos i know it is only a criminal and bad people always say bad again the police,if not' if ur educated and ur not a criminal that always say bad against police and hated the police,as u read these story did u people hear or had any thing like the man having problem wit the police no,the man did not have any problem wit the police that can bring accidental discharge,i think every body use to see the police walking on the street wit there gun,how many times have the police shoot u or kill u no they did not,is bcos the police can never see u and just bring out his gun and kill u,are they mad people no they are not mad, we are seeing police every day wit gun so if police are just killing any body that they see the whole nigeria could have finish by now,so what am saying is that since the man did not have any problem wit the police,and somebody put on police uniform and kill the man,that person is not a police man,that person must be am armrobber on police uniform,why i said these is bcos me and u use to see thousand of policemen on the street wit there guns for so many years,and they did not shoot or kill us just like that, so the police spokelerson ngozi braid is right the police did not kill the man,bcos if the police are doing like that any body they just see they will kill that person, the whole nation could hv finish,may be somebody have been planing to kill the innocent man

Robbers would naturally ask for money or valuables. Now let us widen the possibilities. Was the late young man in a cult? Cult members have been known to kill rival cult members after weddings. It has happened so many times before. I find it difficult to believe that the Police shot the young man without an altercation. A thorough investigation could unravel the motive of the killers.

Nigerian Police with heresy and fallacy. I was wondering if Braithwaite was at the scene that she can be so sure that it was armed robber that killed the guy and not the stupid black evil fellow with black inner spirit in black uniform. Does this mean the guy that came from UK to celebrate his friend does not know the difference between the two. The D.P.O asked if the guy was sure and he said yes, how come the silly P.R.O in her office knows the killer. One day God will answer her daughter prayer with such a response( imagine just 2 days after honeymoon). Kii san fe san, ki gba fe e ra, gbogbo olopa olubi ni nijiria, aye yin o ni ni sinmi... This is pathetic and very sorrowful. It was rather unfortunate that this gentleman died just like that. We should not jump into conclusion that police killed him and also the police spoke person Mrs Ngozi Braide should not forget that it could be an accidental discharge from the police on patrol. However, let wait for the autopsy which can assist to determine the type of live ammunition used to killed this man. I am so sure that from this we can confirm if truly is the police that responsible for his killing or not. Another thing is that if the DPO want to be of assistant, he can confirm through the quantity / number of live ammunition released to those officers on patrol, then if it falls below the number released, it means they have to account for how the bullets released to them were used. Finally, i will just Nigerian police lacked weapon handling skills, they will never apply safety catch in their weapon, that is why they often shoot themselves due to negligence. I was detailed to provide security for Vice President Sambo along side some Policemen, I had to involve SSS details of the VP to ensure that the policemen applied safety catch of their rifle. They just wasted an innocent life and blaming it on armed robbers, the DPO and the robotic PPRO should know that God sees everything and we will all give account, except they have been programmed not to die, but one day their battery run out, then judgement will come.

- 1, where has he been staying while the couple went for their honeymoon?
- 2, was he in any way an ex of the bride
- 3, why choosing such a late hour to go?
- 4, How come the moment his late friend pulled over to a stop than the other car stopped?
- 5, Why was he in a rush to run back and tell the wife instead of trying to revive him and equally rush him to the hospital?

These and many more points out that his so call London friend knows more than he is telling us.

We all know that in this country of ours, police can and will never arrive a robbery scene that fast; especially when they hear ARMED ROBBERS!!! The police wanted to rob this man, that is the simple truth.

They can confirm this by checking the crime scene for shell casing and match it with the bullet of the police. This is a simple case that does not need too many accusation. May the soul of the departed rest!!!

There are questions we need to ask before accusing anyone. Was anything taken away from the car? There will be some evidences if it was robber that shot, and what happened to the car that parked beside the deceased and the friend? Let the police do there investigations. Since there was no misunderstanding with the police it is unlikely to shoot unjustly except accidental discharge.

Human lives has become so cheap in Nigeria. The entire country stinks with bloods of innocent people, Lord have mercy! My heart bleeds for this young woman (his wife) its a big torture she will forever live with God help her. Iam newly wed too so I know what it means. Most of the police men are trained robbers. I have this short experience to share with you guys. I flew into the country in September 2009 for a short vacation and one day I asked a driver to take me to somewhere in Ikeja Lagos. On our way we were stopped by some policemen. They ordered the driver to come down and follow them, he obeyed and after a while a short argument ensued. I over head them ask him for some money but when the driver said he had nothing on him one of the policemen said “ASK THAT OGA SITTING INSIDE THE CAR HE NO DE LIVE FOR THIS COUNTRY HE JUST CAME, HE HAS MONEY” At that point I quickly intervened, gave the driver one thousand naira note to give them and immediately we were asked to go. The next day I reconfirmed my flight and left. So guys be very careful and vigilant with these so call policemen. Else where around the world the police is your best friend and are willing to help you in times of need. God help Nigiera.

stealing anything?what was their motive then?they didn't even try to take anything from him he was just shot!that clears the fact that it wasn't a robbery!plus they didn't even rob d other people from the ash car who ran to stay behind his friend.so what exactly was their motive?the police got to the crime scene and instead of calling an ambulance or rushing the victim to the hospital they stood there looking like a bunch of emptyheads!maybe he would have been alive today if they had remembered that's its life first!this case must not just die down as its a norm for the police.it should be sorted out so the innocent man can rest in peace.

This case sound's like assassination and is quite confusing why a police will just come out without argument,no questioning and just shoot an innocent person.The police should check the guy's friends and probably some guys that the wife had dated before their marriage or probably find out how the guy met his wife.In a case like this is more than a police just come out and shot person,there is more to it.

They are so unprofessional with their guns and it is so sad for our country. This matter should not be swept under the rug! DPO, God will help you, but don't always jump to conclusions. Armed robbers have a different operating style, you have to search inwards and do a thorough job of investigation. This case in heaven and earth hangs on the police, especially, the DPO. How can the police, without investigation, declare that the shooter was a robber in black dress? If the shooter was a robber, what is the motive of shooting to kill, without anything haven been stolen? It is obvious that the friend was right, because the shooter(s) asked “who goes there” twice and robbers don’t ask such questions. I think we have crops of trigger happy cops, who are ill trained or not trained at all, roaming the street of Nigeria and terrorizing innocent citizens.

I sincerely pity the young bride, whose fortune has suddenly turned into bitterness, a scare that might live with her for the rest of her life. I equally pity the spokes person of the Force, Ngozi Braid who fails to tell the truth, in the course of carrying out her duty. She and other evil cops like her has forgotten that they have children and loved once, in which they are laying curse over thier destiny.

I was told of a one time cop, who took huge money and looked the other way after a rough-rider killed an innocent by-passer... Eventually, he sent his son abroad for studies from proceeds of his crime. 15 years later, his son came home and was killed on the same street where the accident occured a decade and a half years ago...Whilst everyone was lamenting the loss...Only him remembered the symbolism of what was unfolding. What you sow, you shall surely rip...

two questions... even if the police is trigger happy, what could have caused such unprovoked attack; or, what does the policeman stand to gain by killing a man in the presence of his friend....its mysterious, but I suspect foul play somewhere. In this life, there are envious people who would do whatever they can to cause sorrow to people they hate. While i still think the police is culpable, I think rushing to blame them would prevent a true and thorough investigation. My thoughts to his family, who have been robbed deeply

I graduated from the same University with Ugo. I was in Electrical and he in Mechanical, so I pretty know him well at least for over 10years. Ugo was a very humorous young man and passionate about Nigeria, the same country or society that he was killed carelessly like an animal. Why would anyone say maybe he is into drugs Y Nigerians? Anyways whether he was Ibo, Yoruba or Hausa we his friends from UNAD careless because we have never had an ethnic issue while in school nor after, we understood our differences and worked it out and for us to still be in touch that says much. Whether is death was by the police or not why will the PRO of police Ngozi quickly conclude without investigation openly declared he was killed by armed robbers? Haba Ngozi that is so not fair..this is a young man in his prime, 5days old married man with a wife made a widow after 5days of been a married woman. In other sane and normal countries somebody would have been held responsible by now even IF he was killed by armed robbers like the police said, what are they putting in place to fish out the culprit? Are the family, friends and Nigerians been updated with the progress of the investigation? Remember the case of the young that was killed by a policeman in Rivers state on Okada on his way to church, his mother witnessed his death and all because the boy asked why collect money from Okada on a Sunday and he was shot and the police said another thing and till date we hear or know nothing about the case. That is just one out of many. Please Nigerians we have to refuse the sudden death or killings of our young men by the police and until we all agree and speak one voice this wicked and barbaric act will continue....If you care less, who knows who will be the next victim? How do we Nigeria citizens protect ourselves against the Nigerian police is the next question? R. I. P UGOCHUKWU OZUAH

This is a very sad story and I wish the widow and family the fortitude to bear this sad development.

However, I wish to bring out a few points in this story

1. Could he have been shot as a case of mistaken identity by the police?(They have no reason to shoot to kill any unharmed person anyways)
2. Like someothers have opined, could it be a targeted attempt on his life by assasins?
- 3 What was dat ash coloured car doin parked as described in the story?

Here is my conclusion

1. We can NEVER be too careful when driving at night especially. Let's be careful where and so we park

2 The Nigerian Police should as a matter of urgency and responsibility, withdraw their initial statement until proper forensic investigation is done and the truth is revealed

3 The investigation to be conducted by the police must be TIME bound and Nigerians must have respect for the police

These are my humble opinion

May God grant our brother eternal rest. Amen.

• Raphael September 24, 2012 at 8:59 am

Twas rather too abrupt, AND HIGHLY SUSPICIOUS, for Ngozi Braide to conclude it was armed robbers who killed the man.

The report didn't say if the occupants of the ash/blue car were still at the scene when Omene returned with the family. Did they also allude to a policeman as the shooter?

If one is to probe Ngozi Braide's position further, given that the so-called armed robbers had shot the driver and the other witnesses had scampered to safety, why didn't they drive away with the car? Who saw the armed robbers and gave the police the detail of them having used an SUV for the robbery Braide should have waited for further investigations and the bullet to be examined at the least.

Ordinarily, when such an incident occurs, the weapons of all the policemen in the patrol team that seemed to be first at the scene, and one of whom had been accused as the shooter by a witness, should have been impounded, checked for which was fired recently and the bullets in each individual rifle compared against the bullet recovered from the victim's body. The armourer at every police station is responsible for issuing out weapons to policemen, as well as bullets. Ngozi Braide should have asked for the records of the armourer for the Anthony station (or wherever the 1st response team was from) and requested for a physical verification of the condition of the weapons and ammunitions. Don't policemen report on instances of weapons discharge? Aren't the ammunitions given to them tracked?

None of these is rocket-science, just plain empirical and logical steps.

An Ombudsman should be created in Nigeria for the sole purpose of investigating all cases of alleged police shootings. Simple gunpowder residue test could have been performed on the officers involved.

Ngozi Braide, nothing personal, but as they say "Karma is a bit**". So don't let your current position kill your integrity or conscience.

Ngozi the police spoke person is correct even though she made the statement in a hurry but being a Nigerian and a professional police herself, she knows that there is no difference between an average Nigerian Police officer and a notorious armed robber or at best they are collaborators. so if she says the guy was killed by armed robbers, so be it. there is no need for any investigation when the body that would investigate is the culprit and their authority had given the outcome of their investigation before it would ever commence, only God can save the rest of us from all these armed robbers in government uniform that are paid from our taxes.

but iam dissappointed in Ngozi's hasty conclusion, with all her intimidating credentials acquired both at home and abroad. it simply goes to say that there is something pathologically wrong with the Nigerian police regardless their training and exposure.

Ngozi Braide is a disgrace to the police force. What am I even talking about? There is no police force in Nigeria!

Even if the deceased was shot by armed robbers, why did policemen watch him bleed to death? Were they performing first aid on him when his family members arrived?

Ngozi Braide, teach your men and women basic first aid skills. Many people bleed to death unnecessarily because they cannot get basic help. How did she even reach the conclusion that armed robbers shot the guy? Has she got any ballistic evidence indicating that the bullet was not from the force's ammunition?

The government really have to do something about the decay in the system.

Hospitals should be well equipped, have Accident and Emergency services and more funds should be pumped into buying ambulances.

In summary, people should stay indoors after dark because it is just not safe going out any more.

From the above story,her name was not mentioned as an eye witness,how then did she know the people that committed the crime and the vehicle they used.

All being said,if we want to have real peace from these kinds of heart bleeding situation, we need collaboration of network providers in this nation to help when it comes to crime mayhem. The number one suspect is Ugochukwu`s friend, the police should investigate him thoroughly, from the point he came back from abroad,his mobile phone messages,people he called,that day and few days before visiting his friend. Possibly, his wife too should cooperate perhaps there were some adamant ex-lovers who want her at all costs. As someone said here, investigators should try and see if the deseases has at one time or the other a member of cult, maybe he has left the cult and they are after his life. Police bullet is quite different and hardly seeing on market. Our ignorant in these country is now becoming a weapon that hunt us arround. A gun shot by inexperience assainlant might not kill eventually if the neccessary measure were put in place almost immedaitely depends on where the gun hit, distance and positionning. The poor friend that ran back to the estate should have try to stabilize the guy first before running away calling for help. Nigeria is a lawless nation police can do it at the same time he might be an armed rubber or hire assassin. we need to get our fact wright before blamming any body.

Those saying that his friend should be quizzed should read the story very well cuz if the guy has hand it should not have happened before his presence and again if it were to be armed robbers they should have harmed every other person there or must have taken his car, i suspect they might be hired killers who must have trailed him from his house but whatever might be the case the police has a case to answer by clearing their name from the incident how ever we nigerians will never be surprise if the case is nipped into the bud like many other cases involving the Nigeria Police and the Nigeria masses. Ngozi could have been talking about investigating the shooting instead of jumping into conclusion, it is by law, the role of the judge to pass judgment on who committed an offence, the role of the police is to investigate, allege and prosecute. As for Ozuah's friend, Omene, he appeared to have got his priority wrong, he could have first considered saving the life of the victim by rushing him to the nearest standard hospital and not to inform the wife. At any rate the case needs to be thoroughly investigated without any bias.

It's very unfortunate and highly deverstating for the family. This groosom murder of an innocent young man is really bad. I hate people walking or driving out late in the night without good reasons. Ugochukwu shouldn't have escoted his friend beyond the gate since it was late else the visitor should sleep over and leave the next morning, that would have saved the situation. I suggest that his friend remains the first suspect. As for Ngozi Braid, Lagos is too big for her to manage. I hvae watched her utterances for some time and conclude that she has not really settled down to work as Lagos state police spokes person.

How can she conclude that the guy was shot by armed robbers when nothing was taken from him. It's rather sad.

From the article there was the Police, there was another car, there was the friend. Did the DPO secure the area as crime scene. Was the pictures taken before the crime scene was conterminated? The ballistic would tell more. Where is the third car in the story. Swaps on the police hands and clothings would be vital to the investigation.

I am afraid the DPO and and his fellow officers might have incompetently destroy vital evidence.

• O. Adeniyi September 24, 2012 at 12:00 pm

My comments will centre on at least four points, First, People like “Concern” that turned this tragic incident into tribal or ethnic issues are enemies, they are animals and are worse than police and armed robbers combined.

Secondly, eye witnesses said police did the killing and on the spot, the police chief denied murder and lied against armed robbers, it appears NPF only trains their officers to kill, get bribe and tell lies. The eye witness accounts are credible and form basis for further investigation, the discharged bullet and the one embedded inside the body of the victim could have been forensically examined and that would have linked them to police gun or otherwise. Thirdly, it appears NPF is totally unaware of first aid treatment and they generally lack victim care skills. Fourthly, Another possible line of enquiries should be directed to the boyfriends of the wife if the new wife has/had hidden man friend that would not let go the woman to another man, a wicked rival can do this killing. Generally operations and skills of NPF are a million miles behind modernity. May God save Nigeria from ENEMIES WITHIN Ngozi Braide, no problem, but what you should know is that you are talking to human beings that have the same thinking faculty. Let us reason this way, If it were armed robbers, don't you think they would've shot they two of them for want of escape. Don't you think that a happy trigger police man shot an innocent man zero his mind with the belief that just as your attitude nothing will happen? Because police have no fire discipline and control of arms and ammunition. Ok, whichever way can't you carry out a proper investigation on the death of that young man before concluding it was armed robber.

@ Dede u're very stupid, am not sure u're leaving in the country, if u re, u will never make such a point "saying police are moving around with gun but they can't shoot without order". last year around November time, i was coming from Abeokuta to Lagos (on old road), immediately after a market called Arigbajo (Ifo area), there is a road block. The Nigeria Police Officer discharge only cos a driver refused to pay N50 unaccounted for.

Presently at Iyana-Ipaja, Abule-Egba junction, u will see Nigeria Police officer running after Okada rider on the express way, risking there life. I am very sure that Nigeria Police can kill this man, nearly 80% of them are Ogogoro master. If you see them @ Lion Building area u will never in ur life dream of becoming a police man.

So Dede, if you don't know what to say please keep shut. It is better to research before making a contribution to this king of Issue.

Nigeria Police can kill there families for money. May the soul of gentle man rest in peace!

I strongly believe the crime rate in Lagos is on the increase side.I ttherefore recommend the reloyment of the Commissioner of Police.

In most parts of Nigeria, your security and safety is in the hands of individuals and God. We all know that some criminals wear police uniforms, but it is difficult to distinguish between these bad guys and policemen particularly at night. We all need to be cautious and be suspicious of every movement in Nigeria because when criminals leave the scene, it has been too difficult to apprehend them. Since State Police is not an option by the Federal Government at this time, they should allow gun permit for trained neighbourhood watchmen/security, which can be registered with the Nigerian Police. The leaders of such neighbourhood will be responsible for any misuse and they will always have regular updates and meetings with the Police Division/Area Command. There will be effective mobility and communication within a defined neighbourhood. Where affordable, a CCTV camera could also be installed at inlets and outlets of a given community. Community members in Lagos do pay and arrange for unarmed watch men, but if the Federal Government could allow them to hire well trained and armed security men that could be registered with Nigerian Police, these community members are ready to contribute, since the Police System appears to be inadequate.

- Nijaborn September 24, 2012 at 1:56 pm

Rest In Peace Ugochukwu Ozuah. The police people and this Ngozi Braide must understand that what goes around comes around and the even that men do lives with them.

Omene, the friend of Ugochukwu said that the person who shot his friend said “who goes there” (which is the language of the police). The person did not say “hands up”

(which is the language of robbers). Again, after the killing nothing was stolen from the card neither was the car taken if it were robbers.

Therefore, if these police people are trying to hide the policeman that is involved in this killing then they must all understand that Ugochukwu's blood is on their heads and hands.

God bless Nigeria

For me, i think that friend he went to drop should be interogated properly. What was he waiting for till 10pm at a newly wedded man's house when he knows that nigeria has no night life! Secondly if it was armed robbers as the police claimed, what did they stole from him. The killers are no doubt hired killers, wether police or armed men. If not i suspect his friend must have shot him. Could be they did a deal he did not get what he thought he deserved. That his friend must be questioned properly.

His newly wedded wife also should be questioned. Had any of her admirers sworn that instead anyone would have her he'd rather die?? The guy was killed by assassins i believe.

However, i'm not judging or concluding, just my opinion.

All your submissions are on point. The only addition is that the forensic experts should be called in to determine the type of firearm used. Somebody is trying to cover some facts.

This is sad and shameful for our security agencies, national authority and Nigeria as a nation. We need to migrate from this insane manner of following issues especially where life is involved. How can the police in such a hurry come to conclusion that the young man was shot by armed robbers. They ought to have carried out an investigation before such an arrant conclusion. How could a young man who just wedded couple of days ago die before his friend just like that; I challenge the Nigeria Police to do their work by launching a thorough investigation into this incident. Our country is still passive, timid and very much un-organised and should take drastic measures to curtail crime, reorganise the system and employ capable hands in every sector or rather quarter of governance. Nigeria; once one of the most peaceful places in the world has in recent times become one of the most dangerous places on the face of the earth; what a tragedy! While our leaders are busy with jamboree and jumbo politics, water is spilling out of the dam. Shame!

Would tell me that if Ugo Ozuah were to be the brother to the DPO, wont he investigate to find out who killed his brother? Because this young man was ordinary citizen, that is why the armed robbery theory was bandied by the police even before they start their investigations. One thing is certain, nemesis must surely catch up with those that commit evil no matter how long it takes. To the wife and mother, God is your refuge and solace. He will fight your battle for you. It is amazing that seemingly educated people turn to nitwits when defending the indefensible. Ngozi Braide is suddenly so knowledgeable that she even knows the armed robbers were in an SUV. The right thing to do is to investigate thoroughly before jumping to conclusions. The Police PRO and the DPO concerned have not done justice to their positions by jumping to the defense of the police in the face of eye witness accounts without investigation. Senior police officers should know that jumping to conclusions and making flip judgements only demeans the police force when they are eventually proved wrong. I know for a fact that there are decent and hard working members of the Nigerian Police Force who find such irrational statements made by their colleagues as embarrassing as other Nigerians. I HOPE THEY WILL INVESTIGATE AND LET JUSTICE BE DONE. My sincere condolences go to the family and friends of the late Ugochukwu Ozuah. Am still baffled about why they have to drive when the distance was easily covered within 10 minutes at the point when the friend had to go back to inform the family. Why was the victim left in a pool of blood when he could have been rushed to the hospital ? Does anyone not have information on who the occupants of the other car were? I am assuming the friend saw the man who fired the shot, has he not given a discription of who it was? If they were indeed armed robbers, what was stolen, what were the police doing at the time of the shooting? Are they now saying we didn't fire the shot but at the same time we could not protect the innocent man? Why would robbers shoot an unarmed man in he presence of the police when he posed no threat whatsoever? If at all anyone was to be shot, it would have been the police. This is such a sad case and my hear goes out to the families, especially the new bride. May his soul rest in perfect peace.

Baba God will not come down and fight our woes for us, Boko Haram has been added to the list of excuses the Police now have for committing murder, if the man shot is not “an armed rubber”, then he is Boko Haram. its in two ways,its either the policemen were in pursuit of some armed robbers and eventually shot the wrong person and they dnt wanna admit it OR the friend and the wife knows abt the murder cos the timing “few days” after the wedding shows theres something abt the wedding....the police should interrogate the parties involve,the friend,the wife,and the policemen at the check point at the said time but am so sure its not an armed robber case....

All the same,RIP Ugo

i sense evil from the friend tho i am not judging...like earlier said y must he run to the wife at first and now he is gone back to his base.can u just imagine,what was he doing with newly married couples at 10..the killers claimed to wear police uniform is just camourflage and just wanted to leave people in a confusing state.

then the wife is not left out in this matter yea she mite know nothing but dont you think there is an unsolved issued mayb from their past relationship* who can tell* as a single ready mingle i feel her pains and agony, its so unfortunate to have her honeymoon turn mourning moon.

God ll save us..

i respect the dead..UGO we love you but God loves you more.RIP

This is a farce....my buddy was gunned down by idiots meant to protect and serve ...right in front of his friend who gave his account of things a few hours after the incident...and here we have the MAFIA called the NIGERIAN POLICE maintaining that every truth about that fateful day is a LIE!!! And they wonder why Iriks is keeping low...As much as this situation speaks volumes about the present state of things as far as the country's governance as a whole, WE Brothers of Ugo must keep UGO front and centre....We must get justice for UGO.

The bunch of misfits present when this happened as well as the smart arses trying to cover it up for sake of ...whatever ...must be brought to account. A society where "life" is so fickle is not a society..It's a Jungle.

BROTHERS..It's time we face the anarchists pretending to be protectors..Posterity will judge us harshly if we don't.

To direct attention at the "the friend gone missing" is a clear ploy by the police to stave off attention on the fact that my buddy UGO was shot by cops...please please everybody should stop falling for this cheap psychologist trick.

Put yourselves in the "friend's" shoes.....your buddy gets wasted by the "protectors of the people", you make noise about it to the authorities, then you have the "HEAD OF POLICE" come out to say "IT WAS NOT A POLICE SHOOTING" AND THE FRIEND IS NOW A PERSON OF INTEREST!!!....What would you do my people? Wait around to get wasted too as part of the cover up...

THINK PLEASE!!!!!!

We who know Ugo and his friend implore everyone else to keep Ugo's unlawful, senseless and morally repugnant murder in focus.
