

METRO PLUS

Drunk driver kills five in A'Ibom

Published March 27, 2017f Sharet Tweet

The accident. Photo: Etim Ekpimah

A horizontal row of six small, square images from the website jiji.ng. From left to right: 1. The Jiji.ng logo. 2. A yellow high-heeled shoe. 3. A collection of colorful women's pumps. 4. A pair of men's dress shoes. 5. A collage of various items, possibly for sale. 6. A collage of items, possibly for sale.

Etim Ekpimah, Uyo

An advertisement for a product listing on Jiji.ng. It features the Jiji.ng logo, a small image of a red and gold high-heeled shoe, and the text "Anne Michelle High Block Heel...". Below this is the price "# 6,000".

driver.

The man driving a Ford utility sport vehicle with registration number GCE 342 CX was trying to avoid two children that were crossing the road.

The driver, whose identity had yet to be revealed, was said to be speeding, when he suddenly crashed into the seven people who were waiting at a bean cake (akara) spot at the Ukana Ikot Etim Junction.

An eyewitness, Mr. Godwin Anthony, said the driver crashed into the five pedestrians who died instantly while the remaining two sustained serious injuries.

According to him, when they approached the driver, they discovered that he was drunk. He added the driver with the vehicle had been taken to the Ikot Ekpene Police Command, SARS Department.

Anthony said the seven persons were returning from church on Sunday.

Efforts to speak with the Commissioner of Police, Mr. Donald Awunah, proved abortive as prompt from his telephone indicated that his line was unavailable.

But the Public Relations Officer of the Federal Road Safety in the state, Mr. Uwen God'ssgift, said they had yet to confirm the story.

