A 48-year-old man, Angus Okoye, who was kidnapped from his house some days back, has been found dead in a forest.

PUNCH Metro learnt that Okoye's corpse was found at the boundary between Isu Anioma in the Awka North Local Government Area and Nawgu in the Dunukofia Local Government Area of Anambra

State.

The businessman was said to have been kidnapped from his home in Ifite Isu village, Isu Aniocha on Saturday.

A source in the area, who spoke with our correspondent on condition of anonymity, said, "His kidnap and murder could be linked to the communal crisis in the Isu Aniocha community."

The state Police Public Relations Officer, Haruna Mohammed, confirmed the story.

He said, "Following a distress call, a police patrol team attached to the Dunukofia Division visited the scene in conjunction with a vigilante group. The victim was photographed and rushed to the hospital, where he was confirmed dead by a medical doctor.

"Preliminary investigation revealed that the victim was one Angus Okoye, aged 48 years. He was allegedly kidnapped from his residence at Ifite Isu village, Isu Aniocha in the Awka North
