One person died on Thursday, while scores were injured as supporters of the All Progressives Congress and the Allied People's Movement clashed in the Ifo Local Government Area of Ogun State .

Our correspondent gathered that the APC had organised a rally in Ifo ahead of the March 9 governorship election in the state.

The rally, however, turned bloody when supporters of the Allied People's Movement reportedly hit one of the supporters of the APC with their vehicle and killed him.

The development, according to an eye witness, triggered violence as supporters of both parties engaged in a free-for-all which led to scores from both sides sustaining various degrees of injury.

Our correspondent gathered that the deceased, identified as Thompson Eleka, was a member of the APC in Ifo.
