

NEWS

Police inspector attached to Imo govt house found dead

---

Published April 28, 2020

Inspector-General of Police, Mohammed Adamu

Chidiebube Okeoma, Owerri

A police inspector, Haruna Kawura, attached to the Imo State Government House was on Tuesday found dead at the Avana Shell camp in Owerri, the state capital.

Our correspondent gathered that when found, his lifeless body was covered with bruises raising the suspicion that he was assassinated.

The inspector was said to have gone out for drinks on Monday night only to be found lying dead on Tuesday morning.

When our correspondent visited the scene, people including policemen were seen managing the situation.

READ ALSO: Churches, mosques remain closed despite partial lockdown – Buhari

A colleague of the deceased told our correspondent that the corpse of the inspector was evacuated in an ambulance from the government house.

“The victim is Haruna Kawura. He was an inspector of police. He was demobbed from mobile police in the North and was posted to Imo State and was later posted to the Imo Government House.

“His death was strange. There were bruises on his body. He must have been strangled as there was no gunshot on his body,” the source said.

When contacted, the police spokesperson in the state, Orlando Ikeokwu, confirmed the killing and disclosed that investigation had commenced in the matter.