Missing mother of two found dead in Abuja

A 27-year-old mother of two, Margaret Oyibo Atayi, who went missing on Thursday, May 16, 2024, has reportedly been found dead.

In a Facebook post, the sister of the victim, Ochanya Chelle, announced that her sister had been found, but had "gone to be with the Lord" while thanking friends for the effort put into the search.

She however did not state what might have resulted in Margaret's death.

"I thank you all for your relentless support and all the effort you put in towards finding my sister. We found her; she has gone to be with the Lord. My beautiful shooting star. Farewell, My Love," the post read.

Our correspondent gathered that the late Margaret was found dead late on Monday evening, after going missing for five days.

PUNCH Metro earlier reported that the victim's mother, Mrs Helen Atayi, who spoke with our correspondent, said her daughter was last seen around City College of Education on Abacha Road, Mararaba, near Abuja, before leaving the house at 3 am on the day she went missing.

"She is my daughter. She was 27 years old and married with two children. She has been missing now for four days. We are staying at City College, Abacha Road, in Mararaba. We were sleeping, and she opened the door and ran out at around 3:30am", she said.

Mrs Atayi had also disclosed that Margaret was survived by a husband and two children.

Our correspondent also gathered that she was an indigene of Ugbokolo, Okpokwu LGA of Benue State.
