Johnson Idowu

AN Ogun State-based doctor reportedly killed one person when his vehicle rammed into the Mowe Health Centre in the Mowe area of the state on Tuesday.

A police source privy to the incident but not authorised to speak with the media told PUNCH Metro on Thursday that the incident occurred when the doctor was driving into the hospital premises.

The source noted that the doctor had lost control of the vehicle and rammed into the vehicle of the hospital killing one and injuring two persons.

Doctor's car kills one in Ogun hospital crash

The source said, "An accident occurred at the Mowe hospital. A doctor has always been parking in the Mowe Health Centre but on this particular day, he lost control and rammed into the hospital's fence. One person died while two others were injured."

Confirming the incident to our correspondent in a telephone conversation on Thursday, the Ogun State Police Public Relations Officer, Omolola Odutola, disclosed that the deceased body was deposited at the Olabisi Onabanjo University Teaching Hospital.

•Ogun PPRO, Odutola

She added that an investigation was ongoing on the matter.

"The incident involved a Toyota Highlander Jeep with registration number APP 422 GJ, driven by a doctor.

"The driver, who had been parking at the health centre premises despite not being a staff member, was attempting to enter the health centre when he lost control of his vehicle, hitting the hospital wall and causing injuries to two persons. Unfortunately, a three-year-old named Ejikey Israel died at the scene.

"Police officers visited the accident site, the vehicle was taken to the station for safety, the deceased's body was sent to the OOUTH for autopsy, and the injured individuals were taken for treatment. An investigation into the incident is ongoing," Odutola concluded.