

Rights activist urges justice for slain 13-year-old Delta student

24th March 2025

Delta map

By Dele Ogunyemi

A human rights activist, Comrade Ighorhiohwunu Aghogho, has called on the Delta State Commissioner of Police, CP Olufemi Abaniwonda, to “ensure that justice is served in the shocking murder of 13-year-old Miss Favour ‘F’, a student of Delta Secondary School, Warri”.

This was contained in a signed statement he issued, copies of which were made available to journalists in Warri on Sunday.

PUNCH Metro gathered that Favour’s life was cut short tragically when she was allegedly raped and stabbed to death by suspected ritualists or miscreants.

Her body was reportedly found in an uncompleted building on Erhirhowevrhe Street, off Ejemudarho, in Okumagba Layout, Warri, with visible injuries.

The incident was said to have occurred after Miss Favour attended her school's inter-house sports competition, where she went missing before the event concluded.

Related News

Rights activist decries marginalisation of people living with disabilities

I was attracted by my husband's calmness—Akiyode-Afolabi, lawyer, rights activist

Police arraign rights activist for child abuse

Her worried parents searched fruitlessly for her, but her body was unfortunately found later, a development which sparked widespread outrage and calls for justice.

Aghogho, in his statement, called on the police for "immediate action" emphasising "the need for swift justice and accountability in this heinous crime."