Bayelsa State Government has ordered the Nigerian Police to properly investigate the killing of one Mr Collins Kuromie-Ayebaye, an indigene of Beletiamama community in Brass Local Government Area of the state

The state government also mandated the police to investigate the killing of one Madam Amazige Ayebaesin, from neighbouring Egweama community, also in Brass Local Government Area, a few weeks ago.

The two were killed by yet-to-identified gun men in the community which hosts the Brass Fertiliser and Petrochemical Company and the Brass Liquefied Natural Gas projects and in inter-communal crisis could affect them

The Deputy Governor, Senator Lawrence Ewhrudjakpo, gave the directives in a meeting with stakeholders from both communities and security agencies in Yenagoa

Ewhrudjakpo who condemned the gruesome murder directed the police and other security agencies to deploy and relocate to the area to forestall further breakdown of law and order in the communities.

A statement by his Senior Special Assistant on Media, Mr. Doubara Atasi, on Monday said the deputy governor has condoled with the bereaved family

While describing the murder of Mr. Collins, popularly known as Laku, as barbaric and provocative, he appealed to the people of Egweama to remain calm as the state government had swung into action to ensure the suspect, identified as Mr Kina John, who had already been arrested would the wrath of the law.

“For the police, I believe the Navy will soon hand over the suspect to you so that you will take up the matter. You should tie into the ongoing investigation the murder of the woman, which is gradually gravitating towards ritual killing.
