head and he died.

P.M. News investigations further revealed that the suspect, Falilat resided with her husband at No. 26, Isale Oro in Owode-Yewa, Ogun State where the incident happened. Ganiyu had met Falilat when she was a house maid at a restaurant in Owode-Yewa and he immediately fell in love with her. The love birds were divorcees before they met. Falilat, however, moved into the residence of Bisiriyu, and they began to live together until recently when she convinced him to follow her to Cotonou to know her parents and relatives.

It was after they returned from the trip that the tragedy happened.

Speaking with our reporter, Falilat Ganiyu, blamed the devil for the incident. Narrating how she met Ganiyu and what led to the tragedy, she said: "He met me when I was a house maid at a restaurant and he proposed to me and I agreed. I then moved into his house.

"I later convinced him to follow me to know my parents and relatives but the unfortunate incident happened when we returned.

"He gave me N100 to buy some fish and I cut it into eight pieces and cooked it. After the cooking, I ate four pieces.

"My husband was angry and asked me why I had eaten four from it and he began to beat me."

According to her, "I retaliated by hitting him on the head with an iron rod.

"I ran out and he followed me until he fell down and hit his head on the ground and died.

"Maybe enemies followed us from my place."

Falilat is being detained at Owode Police Station in Ogun State where she is undergoing interrogation.

Before his death, Bisiriyu had six children (four sons and two daughters) from his first marriage while Falilat didn't bear him any child.
