Woman Jumps Into Fire, DiesJumps

Print version

August 12, 2009 14:43, 795 views

By Ayo Lawal/Astro Jewoola

A 40-year old woman, Isiwatu Tiamiyu, this morning jumped into a raging fire along Agbado Road, Toyin Bus Stop, Iju-Ishaga, Ifako-Ijaiye, Lagos State, in a suspected suicide.

P.M.News gathered that Tiamiyu, with a history of mental problem, was walking through the Agbado Road when she saw a fire ignited by KAI officials to burn illegal structures and jumped into it. She was immediately roasted.

Eye witnesses told P.M.News that nobody could rescue Tiamiyu, as the fire raged.

Some residents of the area who suspected spiritual manipulations in the death of the woman, took to the streets to protest her death. They blamed her death on the demolition of a church in the area.

Policemen from nearby Iju Police station brought the situation under control before it degenerated into a full blown riot.

Her elder brother, Wasiu Tianiye, told P.M.News that the deceased was not married and did not have a child of her own, adding that she hailed from Abeokuta, Ogun State.

As at the time of filing this report, shops in the area have been closed for fear of being attacked by hoodlums who tried to hijack the peaceful protest by residents.

When P.M.News visited the residence of the deceased at 2, Akande Street, Iju-Ishaga, neighbours and sympathisers were seen consoling members of her family.

The KAI officials should be blamed. I expect our government to take decisive action immediately against erring officials. KAI officials should have cordoned off the public area where they have decided to have their conflagration, for the sake of vulnerable people, like Isiwatu. Their carelessness is Indiscipline of the highest order. Me thinks the KAI officials earned their salaries from revenues and taxes collected from you and me, including Isiwatu's relations!

This is just another way of personal protest against irresponsible Nigerian Government. When people are deprived basic human necessities in their own country, deprived voting birthright for democracy; unemployed with a high cost of living index; disallowed to leave the country coupled with contempt by other nations; no husband based to the fact that legible bachelors haven't got enough money for traditional dowry, and her biological time clock for child-bearing age on a fast-tracking speed, what would she be living for ? Her undertaking is a brave act, who knows those who must have drawned themselves in lagoons, rivers, lakes, or simply close their eyes and ran into moving vehicles. Indeed, this is just begining of many more self protest to come in Nigeria. When death comes, everything is forgotten, and the government would neither push the victim around nor get the dead person's tax .

This lady killed herself so that other would benefit and it is strong statement to Nigerian politicians and perhaps, mental people would be treated like average sick people and not shuned and dispersed.

Have always said it, that after militancy and youth restiveness, the next problem nigerians will encounter will be religion. If you travel abroad, you will be shocked on westerners approach to church. Churches are like tax offices in developed nations. You hardly see white people going to church on a sunday. They only go to church when there is a funeral, wedding or child dedication. Christianity is a western thing and the founders dont even practice it the way we do. Thief go wake up in the morning and go church to thank god say police no catch am for night. Most churches are more than 419 fraudsters. I believe in GOd but not in pastors. These issue with religion is very sensitive and the earlier we address it, the better for us youths. Adieu

Omoibadan, there is no situation in Nigeria that warrants any body to jump into fire, so do not start looking for gut to commit suicide, as I am talking, I am in one of the countries in Africa where I am holding a United Nation appointment, Nigeria is still better than many countries in Africa, despite any problem, What so ever pushed the woman into fire has nothing to do with church, rather her family should know something about it
