Nura, who checked into a hotel at Alaba-Rago, Lagos, Southwest Nigeria, with his lover called Faith, was arrested by men of the Nigeria Police Force, Ojo Division after a tip off by one of the workers in the hotel.

P.M.NEWS learnt that the 24-year old Faith Akin from Ikare Akoko in Ondo State, left home that night and lied to her mother that she was visiting one of her friends in the same community.

According to the deceased's mother, who came to claim her corpse one week after she died, her death, Faith left home that evening telling her that she wanted to see her friend. She never knew Faith went to TIV Yam Market where prostitution also thrives in Ojo area of Alaba-Rago.

After two days of searching, her mother decided to look for the deceased's friend and at her friend's house, she discovered that her daughter was dead.

According to a source at the hotel, Faith entered the hotel at about 9 p.m. with Nura who had already come to book a room at about 7.30 p.m. that day.

The suspect, who booked for the whole night later checked in with the deceased.

In the early hours, the following morning, one of the attendants heard a bang on the door from Nura's room. The source explained that when he got to the door, Nura had locked it from inside.

He said, "When I heard a bang on the door, I went to help him. I realised he locked the door from inside. I asked him to open it thinking he was drunk. When the door opened, I saw some mess on the floor and I asked him who vomited on the floor, he just told me the lady did and he walked past me to the bathroom.

"I moved closer to the girl and noticed she foamed from her mouth. I raised her hand and she did not move.

"When Nura came back, he went back to have sex with the dead lady. I locked the room from behind and went to report the matter at the police station.

"The police visited the hotel, opened the door where Nura lodged with the lady and he noticed they had sex.

"Nura was arrested and taken to the police station. But Nura said he did not know the lady was dead."

The owner of the hotel, from Benue State said Nura must have used sex aphrodisiac to enhance his performance.

The case was later transferred to the State Criminal Investigative Department, SCID, Panti, Yaba, Lagos for further investigation.
