said: "It was glaring that Sarah desperately wanted to marry Ade, to the extent that she was impregnated by him."

"When the relationship started, the deceased's brother had to go to their father at their home town at Akoko area of Ondo State, Southwest Nigeria, to dissuade his daughter from doing what was wrong. But David was shocked that their father supported the relationship, claiming that Sarah, who later converted from Islam to Christianity through her elder brother, must marry Ade."

P.M.NEWS investigation revealed that last Saturday Ade went to pick her from her brother's house to follow him to his house at Kampala West Nar'ya, Kaduna, where he resides with his first wife, Salamotu.

The tragedy occurred on Monday when the first wife and her husband had gone to their shop together and after about an hour, the first wife (Salamotu) told her husband that she was going home to cook for her children. And on getting home, she met the second wife sleeping.

She took a knife and stabbed Sarah to death.

She was caught in the act by one of her children who later raised the alarm. But before neighbours got inside, Sarah was dead, while the suspect was arrested in the toilet where she hid herself with the blood-stained knife she used in stabbing the deceased.

She is presently being detained at the State Criminal Investigation Department, SCID, Kaduna.

She reportedly told the police that she had warned her husband not to marry another wife.

T.B. Joshua

service in Lagos, southwest Nigeria, predicted that within 60 days an African head of state would die suddenly due to sickness.

The prediction, P.M.NEWS learnt, was not taken seriously in many African countries until 5 April when the Malawian President collapsed during a meeting and was declared dead on arrival at the hospital.

The sudden death of Mutharika and the latest prediction by T.B. Joshua that another old African head of state would soon fall critically ill and be hospitalised, have thrown many African countries into panic, especially Zimbabwe, where octogenarian President, Robert Mugabe, is battling with lingering poor health.

Last year, leaked US diplomatic cables quoted the Zimbabwean Central Bank Governor, Gideon Gono, as disclosing to the American Ambassador that doctors had told Mugabe he had prostate cancer and could die in 2013.

Since Mutharika's death, stories on T.B. Joshua, his healing, predictions and miracles have been front page news in Zimbabwe, Malawi, Zambia and a host of other southern African countries where the 49-year old preacher and healer from Ondo State, southwest Nigeria, is extremely popular.

In Zimbabwe, it was learnt that the ruling ZANU PF is attempting to block T.B. Joshua's visit into the country scheduled for 25 May against the wishes of millions of people in Zimbabwe where T.B. Joshua has sometimes been portrayed in media reports as a power broker since Zimbabwean Prime Minister, Morgan Tsvangirai, visited his church in 2010.

T.B. Joshua's Christian television station called Emmanuel TV which is available on satellite and on the Internet via the Streaming Faith broadcast portal is watched by millions of people in western, eastern and southern Africa.

Ex-Air Nigeria Boss Docked Over N16m Fraud

AKIN KUPONIYI

Former Executive Director, (Finance), of Air Nigeria, John Nnorom and his company, Messrs. Cotrac Global Enterprises, have been arraigned at a Lagos Magistrate's Court sitting at Tinubu over alleged conspiracy and fraudulent conversion of money.

In a two-count charge number F/31/12 filed before the court by police prosecutor, Effiong Asuquo, ASP, it was alleged that Messrs. Cotrac Global Enterprises, a Bureau De Change company and John Nnorom, 50, former executive director finance, Air Nigeria and the alter ego of Messrs. Global Enterprises and others now at large on or about March, 2012 in Lagos magisterial district with intent to defraud did fraudulently obtain the sum of $100,000 US dollars from Air Nigeria by falsely pretending that he was going to send the naira equivalent to Air Nigeria, a representation he knew to be false; and thereby committed an offence punishable under Section 312 (1) (2) (3) of the Criminal Laws of Lagos State, 2011.

The accused former director pleaded not guilty to the charge.

He was admitted to bail in the sum of N1 million with two sureties each in like sum.

The case was adjourned till 20 June, 2012 for trial.

15 Killed, 6 Injured In Auto Crash

Fifteen persons on Thursday lost their lives while 6 others were injured when a commercial bus collided with a car on Maiduguri-Damaturu road.

Eyewitnesses told newsmen in Maiduguri that the accident involved a mass transit bus owned by the state government's transport company, the 'Borno Express' and a Volkswagen Golf saloon car.

One of the eye witnesses, Mr Simon Mamza, told the News Agency of Nigeria (NAN) that the incident occurred around 2.35 pm in Jakana village, about 35 kilometres from Maiduguri.

He said the crash was caused by wrong overtaking.

"The whole thing happened at a bend near the Jakana village, as one of the vehicles ran into Court, Lagos, Southwest Nigeria.

The man, identified as Henry Nnamdi, was alleged to have grabbed Chukwuemeka from his mother and hit him on the floor and the baby died instantly.

The incident happened at 3, Lambe Street, Ago Palace Way, Okota, Lagos.

What might have led the man to resort to such a cruel act, according to some of his neighbours, is that he might not be the biological father of the baby.

Others said he might have done that out of anger.

His wife was reportedly not spared as well. He allegedly used hot iron and inflicted injuries on her body before taking the other's lane.

"Within a twinkling of an eye, the vehicles collided killing about 15 passengers in the bus and injuring about six others," Mamza said.

He said that most of the victims died before the arrival of Federal Road Safety Commission (FRSC) rescue team.

A senior FRSC official, Mr Amos Thizha, confirmed the story.

"I heard about the accident but I do not have the details yet. Our rescue team has already evacuated the injured victims to the hospital for treatment."

He said some of the dead victims had been buried at the Gwange cemetery in the metropolis, while other bodies were deposited at the Specialist Hospital morgue.

the boy and hitting him on the floor.

P.M.NEWS gathered that on the day the incident happened, Henry had serious quarrel with his wife, which resulted in the dastardly act.

The police at Okota Division were contacted and they arrested Henry for interrogation. They later transferred the matter to SCID.

The police, after investigation, charged him to court.

The presiding Magistrate, Mrs. Bolarinwa ordered that he should be remanded in prison and referred his case to the DPP for advice.

Tributes Galore For Donna Summer

AYODELE LAWAL

As the death of the star singer Donna Summer was announced yesterday, Nigerian music stars have been paying glowing tributes to the singer who died at 63.

Stella Monye described the death of the singer as shocking, saying that death is now becoming rampant among musicians.

"Why are we dying young, I am afraid o," she exclaimed.

Former president of PMAN and Adawa Super King Dele Abiodun, said: "Death is an inevitable end. Though 63 is not a ripe age to die, I take solace in the fact that God gives and God taketh. As I commiserate with the entire world on the death of the star singer, I take solace in the fact that during her life time she wrote her name in gold as a successful artist and singer."

Fuji King Wasiu Ayinde Anifowshe aka K1 the Ultimate said that Summer's death is a loss to the entire music world. "But in her lifetime she proved herself to be worthy and a strong personality in the music world and a force to reckon with. We will all miss the Queen of Disco."

Fuji Scopido Exponent Aare Sir Shina Akanni said: "At 63, she had lived a fulfilled life as singer and entertainer, though we will all miss her. I take solace in the fact that God knows best. We thank Almighty Allah for a life well spent-Adieu Donna Summer."

Female drummer and singer Ayanbirin, described the death of the star singer and Disco Queen as very sad, "but we thank God that she lived a fulfilled life. We that know the value of good music will miss her."

Juju musician Witty Wale Thompson said: "We will all die some day because death is a debt we have to pay no matter our race or religion. So she has completed her job on earth and she had to go. It is sad that we will not see her again. On my own part I will dedicate a song to her memory today at Asoch Hotel, Ikeja during my performance. Adieu Donna Summer."

Police Foil Robbery Attack In V/I Traffic Jam

PAUL IYOGHOJE

An attempt by a two-man robbery gang riding a motorcycle to attack motorists in a traffic jam has been foiled by the police in Lagos who arrested one of the suspects, Chinonso Onwubuchi.

The police arrested Chinonso who was armed with a locally-made revolver pistol inside the traffic at about 3.30 p.m. on Wednesday at Akin Adesola/Adeola Odeku junction in Victoria Island, Lagos, Southwest Nigeria.

Aneyewitness told P.M.NEWS that the two robbers were trying to rob an owner of Toyota Camry inside the traffic jam. But policemen on patrol sighted the suspect who got down from the motorcycle and pointed his gun at the car owner.

But immediately he sighted the police, he took to his heels, shooting into the air to scare away people from attacking him.

The policemen, the source said chased the fleeing suspect to Adeola Odeku Street where he jumped into a residential compound and threw his pistol inside the gutter.

But the robber was later arrested with the help of the security guard at the compound.

The pistol was also recovered from the gutter by the police and youths who assisted the police in pursuing the robber. But his accomplice escaped in their motorcycle.

The incident caused stampede on the busy street as people ran for their lives to avoid being hit by stray bullets.

Our source said that immediately Chinonso was arrested, he started begging the police not to kill him because he took to robbery when he could not secure a job after he graduated from Imo State University, Owerri, in 2009. He claimed he resides at 7, Coker Road, Orile, Lagos.

When P.M.NEWS visited the Bar beach police division yesterday to see the DPO for comment on the incident, he was not around, but a police source confirmed the incident and said the suspect has been transferred to the State Criminal Investigation Department, SCID, Panti, Yaba, Lagos for further investigation. At the SCID, Panti, Yaba, a police source confirmed that the suspect had been transferred there.

Cassandra Goes Home

BAYO ADETU

The remains of the late Nollywood actress, Cassandra Gabriel, will be laid to rest in her hometown, Ekpoma, Edo State, tomorrow.

The actress was more prominent as one of the lead characters in popular television drama, Face-2-Face produced by AK Media Concepts.

She played the role of Caro in the award winning TV drama.

She succumbed to death after battling breast cancer for about six months.

Speaking with P.M.NEWS on phone yesterday, the Chief Executive Officer of AK Media Concepts, Benson Akindeju, said his company has liaised with the family of the deceased to give her a befitting burial.

"We have also donated a bus that will convey her friends and fans who intend to attend the burial to and from Ekpoma. We are doing all these not just because she worked with us, but she was a well behaved and godly person. May her soul rest in peace. I believe she is not dead because her good works will always be there," Akindeju noted.

The death of Cassandra has further raised fear among Nollywood practitioners who have been jittery at the rate prominent actors have died in recent times. Some of those that died lately include Sam Loco Efe, Gringory, Ashley Nwosu, Ahmed Alasari, Geraldine Ekeocha, Taiwo Bello and David Ihesie.

Boko Haram Targets Northern Govt. Properties

EROMOSELE EBHOMELE

The Islamic sect, Boko Haram has issued new threats warning the 19 governors of northern Nigeria to be prepared as properties of government in their respective states and in Abuja, the nation's capital, are their next target of attack.

The group said they would soon begin to carry out deadly attacks on all government establishments in northern Nigeria and Abuja, warning that such properties should be evacuated in preparation for the attacks.

According to Premium Times, an online news medium which spoke directly with Abul Qaka, the sect listed its target as government-owned properties, offices and residential quarters, in the 19 northern states and Abuja, adding that this was to avenge the destruction of properties belonging to its members and other innocent landlords in some parts of Kano and Borno States.

Qaqa announced through Premium Times that the sect was giving a notice in advance to people who use such targets because the sect did not want to kill innocent people in the attacks.

"We are not happy that innocent people are dying in our war with the government. And that is why we have reduced our attacks in the past few days to enable us to strategise," Qaka was quoted to have said yesterday afternoon.

Accusing the Joint Task Forces in Kano and Borno states of harassing and arresting members of the sect in the two states, he was quoted as saying that, "to our utmost surprise, after arresting them, some with their wives and family members, the JTF will bring out their properties. Both the apartments and the properties are then destroyed."

"This has become the new trend and it is becoming difficult for people to rent out accommodation to people, and a lot of people, including our people are homeless."

"Because of this trend, we have decided that in the coming days, every Nigerian, especially in the North, including Abuja, should vacate any government quarters or buildings - residential, office, classroom or anything owned by government."

Robbers Raid Hospital Pay Point, Kill Soldier, Cashier

OKAFOR OFIEBOR/Port Harcourt

Patients and medical personnel at the University of Port Harcourt Teaching Hospital, UPTH, were thrown into confusion at 5.45 pm yesterday when they heard sounds of gun shots from a gang of four armed robbers that killed a soldier and a cashier.

The attack took place at Sterling Bank pay point at the Emergency Ward of UPTH.

Reports reaching P.M.NEWS this morning said that the explosion at the Rumuokoro junction yesterday afternoon overshadowed the robbery attack at the hospital that happened almost at the same time.

It was gathered that armed robbers had shot the unarmed soldier in uniform accompanying a patient to hospital.

Eyewitnesses told P.M.NEWS the incident caused panic at the hospital.

The robbers carted away huge cash and escaped around Abuja campus.

Ben Ugwuegbulem, the Rivers State Police Command spokesperson confirmed the incident.

"Yes, I can confirm that a gang of four armed robbers robbed and shot a Sterling Bank Cashier at the Emergency Ward cash pay point and a soldier at about 5.45pm," he said.

Dr Diamond Tamunokuro, the Chairman of Association of Residents at the UPTH, said that hospital which is supposed to be a safe place to secure lives can be under attack shows that the UPTH environment is no more safe for patients and medical personnel.
