Six PDP members die, 15 injured in Oyo

Monday, 14 March 2011 00:07 administrator

From Inumidun Ojelade, Ibadam

Six members of the Peoples Democratic Party [PDP] died in a road accident which occurred in Oyo town while travelling to the venue of Governor Adebayo Alao-Akala re-election campaign rally in the ancient town at the weekend.

The victims and 15 other party members who sustained various degrees of injury in the accident, were part of the PDP advance team to the rally.

It was gathered that the PDP members died when the driver of the bus conveying them to the venue of the campaign rally lost control at the Odo-Eran/Union Bank area of Owode in the ancient town. The crash disrupted the free flow of vehicular traffic in the area for over an hour.

An eye witness revealed that the incident occurred when the bus with registration number XL 401ABJ conveying the PDP members which was traveling at neck breaking speed ran into ditch at the Odo-Eran//Union Bank area of Owode forcing the driver to lose control of the vehicle.

An account has it that people who witnessed the accident happen rather than help the victims, took to their heels shouting "they are PDP people. Don't let them spill your own blood too."

The injured were said to have been left unattended to for over 30 minutes until the police arrived the scene and rushed the injured victims to the nearby Peamark Hospital, a private facility for treatment while the corpses of the six dead PDP members were reportedly rejected by the hospital's authorities.

It was later gathered that the six corpses were later deposited at the general hospital located at the Owode/Ogbomoso axis of the town.
