Six persons were feared killed yesterday when suspected political party thugs were engaged in a free-for-all at Amukoko in Ajegunle, Lagos.

An influential party member was said to have gone to the Apasa Street in Amukoko in company with his supporters on a house-to-house campaign.

Crime Watch Today gathered that an argument ensued among the supporters and one Raimi was shot in the process. It was gathered that Raimi sympathizers from Akindele Street went there on a revenge mission which claimed five more lives.

They were allegedly shot dead, while 12 others were seriously injured.

An eyewitness who simply identified himself as Lukman told Crime Watch Today that "the hoodlums who party supporters shot Raimi in the eye. As he was running for his life, his killers started raining more bullets on him. As he fell down, they shot him in his chest and he died.
