A middle-aged man was shot dead by gunmen who also attacked his son at Ug-bolokposo community in Uvwie Local Government Area of Delta State.

The bandits who stormed the area in the morning were on a revenge mission and also destroyed properties estimated at millions of naira.

Investigation revealed that the hoodlums had a fortnight ago raided three buildings in the vicinity and carted away several valuables.

During the raid, the robbers broke into a store where they emptied the drinks and fried meat inside the fridge.

Crime Watch Today learnt that as the hoodlums were leaving, the deceased confronted them and gave them a hot chase and in the ensuing state, the man succeeded in collecting two guns and attacked one of the fleeing robbers. The bandits, however, promised to retaliate.

But the bandits who actually came on a revenge mission, shot the man, said to be an Igbo severally on the head and chest and shattered the waist of his son with the hail of bullets.

Sources said the man died instantly while his son is now battling with his life in a hospital.
