Another tragedy was recorded yesterday in Anambra State when a truck laden with fresh tomatoes fell on a Sport Utility Vehicle (SUV) and crushed the driver to death. Both the truck driver and his conductor escaped, but sustained injuries.

According to an eyewitness, the incident happened at a particular spot along Ogidi/Abatete road in Abatete, Idemili North Local Government Area, when the two affected vehicles coming from opposite directions were trying to dodge a bump, and in the process the container carried by the truck fell on the SUV.

It took the concerted efforts of the local vigilance group led by Mr. Arthur Ilongwu and some other passers-by to bring out the trapped corpse of the SUV driver, who reportedly died on the spot. According to the leader of the vigilance group, the incident occurred as a result of the height of the bump. He said: "The bump is too high for vehicles, especially those carrying heavy goods. The state government or Abatete people should reduce the height of the bump to forestall future occurrence". As at the time of filing this report, there was a serious gridlock along the road as a result of the incident.
