The disagreement between 36-year-old Mohammed Adamu and his elder sister, Ikani Ayebe Adamu, which had simmered since 2014, finally boiled over, resulting in Mohammed strangling her to death.

Mohammed is now gnashing his teeth in regret, in the custody of the Kogi State Police Command, under the watchful eyes of men of the State Criminal Investigation Department, where he is undergoing interrogation.

Bad blood between the siblings developed over the plantain planted in their father's compound.

Long before Mohammed strangled the sister, Sunday Sun gathered that he had severely threatened to kill her and burn her house over her refusal to allow him harvest the plantain planted in their father's compound.

The deceased, Ikani, was the first among nine children of the family, which hailed from Adamu Igah village, Olamaboro Local Government Area, Kogi State. Four of the children died later, prior to the recent demise of Ikani.

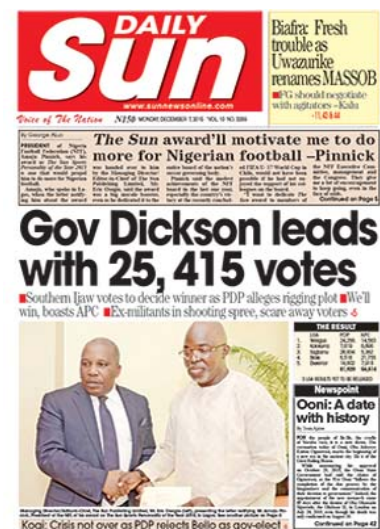

The Kogi State Commissioner of Police, Emmanuel Ojukwu, who spoke with Sunday Sun expressed shock at the horrifying death of the deceased.

One of the children of the deceased, Onaja Adamu who recounted the chain of events that led to the death of the mother said: "My uncle, Mohammed Adamu came to our house around 4pm to inquire about the whereabouts of my mother. I told him that my mother went to the farm to harvest cassava stem.

"He left and came back around 6:00pm to ask about my mother again. I still told him that my mother had not yet come back. We became suspicious of why he was insistent on knowing the whereabouts of my mother. So we traced our mother to the farm and saw her dead body around 8:00pm, lying by the side of the road; her wheelbarrow also stood beside her."

Promptly they raised the alarm and rushed to Olamaboro Police Station to report the killing of their mother. The case was transferred from Olamaboro Police Station to the State Criminal Investigation Department, Lokoja for proper investigation.

In a chat with Sunday Sun, the Deputy Commissioner of Police, in-charge of the State Criminal Investigation Department, Lokoja, Mr. Ibrahim Sambo, said that detectives were drafted to investigate the circumstances that led to the death of Ikani. In the course of the investigation, the detectives arrested Mohammed as the prime suspect.

During interrogation, he confessed to the crime and narrated how he killed his elder sister.

Sambo said that the autopsy report confirmed that the deceased was strangled to death. He added that the suspect would soon be charged to court.
