TWO police constables were feared killed early Tuesday morning when gunmen numbering about 12 invaded Osara police station in Adavi Local Government Area of Kogi state.

According to a witness account, the hoodlums invaded the police station at about 2.15 am on Tuesday morning and started shooting sporadically throwing the sleepy community into confusion.

On gaining entry into the station, the hoodlums were said to have gone straight to the armoury where they carted away arms and ammunition and thereafter flung open the police cell and released detainees in custody.

The witness disclosed that two policemen who tried to resist the hoodlums were said to have been gunned down while two others were critically injured and now responding to treatment in Federal Medical Centre, Lokoja.
