

Cultists kill suspected rival

From Bamigbola Gbolagunte, Akure

Suspected cultists have killed a 24-year-old man in Ondo, Ondo West Local Government Area of the state.

The suspected cultists invaded the town in the midnight and moved round major streets until they eventually killed the victim.

It was gathered that the victim, Victor Olabode, was alleged member of the Eiye Confraternity.

Sources disclosed that the deceased recently had issues with some individuals, who are alleged to be members of a different cult group, leading to the death of some individuals in the town.

In what appears like a reprisal attack, members of the rival cult group, who lost one of their members traced Olabode to his residence at night and killed him.

The late Olabode was said to be sleeping in his father's house at Ajagbale street when he was lured out by a young man who claimed to be one of his friends.

The killing of Olabode almost degenerated into serious pandemonium in the town as members of various cult groups attacked each other before the situation was put under control by security operatives.

The Divisional Police Officer (DPO) in charge of Enuwa Police division, Mr Kunle Omisakin, confirmed the incident, saying that the Police are already working to ensure that peace return to the town fully.

He said three persons have been arrested in connection with the incident.
