The spokesperson of the Osun Police Command, Yemisi Opalola, confirmed the incidence.

She said information available to the command revealed that five persons were killed during the clash.

A security source confided in Daily Sun that no fewer than eight persons were killed in the clash.

According to a source in the town, “about ten persons were killed. The security may not get an accurate figure. They may also not want to disclose the number of victims.”

However, the state Commissioner of Police, Olawale Olokode, said the security is on top of the situation, saying “more policemen have been deployed to the town.”
