But according to the state government, from the profiling of those who were apprehended by the security operatives so far, 85 per cent of the hoodlums came from a particular state in the region while the remaining 15 per cent came from the rest states in the South East.

“Anambra is a key state in the Southeast and Nigeria and has suffered heavily from the unrelenting conflict. With the cross-border nature of the crisis, no sustainable solution in one state can happen without a comprehensive understanding of the regional and national dimensions, a statement signed by the Secretary to the State Government, Prof. Solo Chukwulobelu, read.

When contacted, the Police Public Relations Officer in the state, DSP Too-chukwu Ikenganyia, said that he was not aware of the ugly development. “I don't have such reports before me”, the PPRO said.
