A man has died during sex, while another committed suicide in different locations of Lagos. It was gathered that a male guest at an inn on Adeniji Adele area of the state, had lodged in company with a lady for a short time service.

According to a worker at the hotel, the lovers ordered for drinks and locked themselves inside the room making love, but after one hour, the lady came out and pretended that she was going to buy something outside the hotel.

The worker told the police that they didn't suspect that the lady was deceiving them when she said she was going to purchase something across the road "until after the time they booked had expired, and we decided to find out why they did not want to respect the time.

"When we knocked at the door, there was no response; so it dawned on us that the lady who told us that she was going to buy something had not yet come back. When we opened the door, we discovered a naked man who had died on the bed. We have to report to Adeniji Adele police station. The police came to the scene, took photographs and evacuated the body to a public morgue. We are suspecting that he may have died during sex and that was why the lady ran away. We did not hear any scuffle or shout; so we did not suspect any foul play until we opened the door."
