

Go For My Husband's Killers, Widow Begg Police

Posted on Aug 25 2016 - 1:42am by Uchenna Inya Views: 11« PREVIOUS | NEXT »

A 37-year-old primary school teacher in Ishata Amanato village, Anioma Isu community in Onicha Local Government Area of Ebonyi State, Mrs. Rachael Nworie yesterday called on the state police command to investigate the killing of her husband, Michael Nworie by suspected assassins in the area. Nworie, a patent medicine dealer was stabbed to death on 19th May, 2016 in a track road in the area.

The wife, Rachael, said since then, the police have refused to look into the matter, alleging a coverup. She said her husband's killers after the dastardly act wrote on a blackboard in her classroom that she will go the same way the husband left the world and drew human head, axe and dagger to illustrate their points, making her life under danger.

In a petition to the state Commissioner of Police, Peace Ibekwe Abdallah, on the matter and made available to New Telegraph, she said: "My husband was murdered at a track road leading to Isuachara at Anioma Isu.

He has been at the mortuary with stabs of knives all over his body. "He was called on phone by someone who claimed to be a client to his clinic home services at about 6:30pm hours of that day. "I have made efforts to