

'One killed, 45 abducted' as gunmen invade Kaduna community on Christmas Day

Gunmen have reportedly killed one person and abducted 45 people in the Angwan Aku community in Kajuru LGA of Kaduna State.

The attack was said to have occurred on Sunday morning when residents of the community were preparing to go to church to celebrate Christmas.

The gunmen were said to have stormed the village on motorcycles.

The community is said to be far from Mararaban Kajuru, an area where an army base is located.

Mohammed Jalige, the spokesperson for the Kaduna Police Command, said he was not aware of the incident at the time of filing this report.

He, however, said he would provide more information when he confirms the incident.

Ungoverned spaces

missioner of Police in a state and somebody is kidnapped and killed, you must explain why such a life was lost.

"The Area Commander should be called to order; the DPO should be called to order; the people at the post should be called to order.

"When nobody is responsible the space will be ungovernable, but if somebody is held responsible for insecurity, I think we will have more security in our country."
