Nigeria military fighter jet on Friday bombarded terrorists in their hideout killing several of them following the abduction of the Village Head of Fugu.

One of the villagers who spoke on condition of anonymity told our Correspondent that during the attack, the fighter jet descended on the Bandits who were gathered around a herd of several of the Bandits and rustled cattle.

The villager said after the bombardment, they saw lifeless bodies of Bandits and dead cows that were killed as the result of the airstrike.

Furthermore, he claimed that the Bandits have gone into their den which is located in the forest bordering Niger State and Kebbi State. Sunday Telegraph reported that 10 people, including Zaire and 49 others were abducted on Friday afternoon when the Bandits numbering over one hundred invaded the village with motorcycles shooting.

Sunday Telegraph learned that the majority of the abductees were women and children with few males while several cattle were rustled.

The residents said that the terrorists have begun contacting the families of the abductees demanding fuel, motorcycles, and money as ransom for the release of the captives.

As at the time of filing this report, efforts made to contact the Niger State Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), DSP Abiodun Wasiu, and the State Security Council were unsuccessful as their numbers were not reachable.
