A middle-aged corps of Osun Security Network Agency (aka Amotekun) identified as Demilade Eluwande, has been found dead on his farm in Ile-Ife.

It was gathered that Eluwande had gone to his farm at early hours of Sunday to harvest cocoa with his wife when he died.

Amotekun officer found dead in Osun

A source, who confided in New Telegraph, disclosed that the farmland of Eluwande is a disputed land as two families have been claiming ownership of the land and threatened to kill him in diabolical way if he refused to cede the land to them.

It was gathered that while

Eluwande was in the farm plucking cocoa, he became unconscious and died.

It was revealed that the family of the deceased have taken the corpse for burial at Ajidara, Ile-Ife.

The spokesperson for Nigeria Security and Civil Defence Corps, Osun State Command, Kehinde Adeleke, confirmed the incident.
