

Fresh graduate found dead in Ibadan, womb missing

Sola Adeyemo

IBADAN

It was shocking yesterday in Ibadan, Oyo State capital, as body of a young lady with her womb missing was recovered by the police.

The lady, identified as Omoniye Boluwatife, a graduate of Lead City University, Ibadan, was found dead and evacuated by the police. She was on Tuesday inducted into the Nursing and Midwifery Council of Nigeria.

She had reportedly gone to celebrate her recent induction into the nursing profession at a nightclub on Tuesday night before her death.

The body of Boluwatife as seen in a viral video was seen on the floor. She had reportedly seen her mother off to the motor park after she (the mother) travelled from Port Harcourt to join her in celebrating her induction into the nursing profession before the incident.

Reacting to the news of Boluwatife's death, the club where she reportedly went, Copacapana denied that the incident happened on its premises, adding that the management will not take responsibility for incidents that occur outside the club premises.

In a statement made available to newsmen yesterday, the management said: "It saddens our heart to hear about the tragic event that happened to some customers after leaving our facility.

"However, as a nightclub, we cannot take responsibility for incidents that occur outside our premises. Although, our thoughts and prayers are with the victims and their families.

"Our nightclub prioritises the safety of all our patrons. Our venue is equipped with top-notch security systems making it one of the most protected facilities in the city of Ibadan".

Meanwhile, efforts made to reach the Oyo State Police Command spokesperson, Adewale Osifeso, (SP) were futile as calls put to his mobile phone were not answered as of the time of filing this report.

We'll stimulate economy to work for greatest majority, Tinubu assures Nigerians

Lawrence Olaoye

ABUJA

President Bola Ahmed Tinubu has reassured Nigerians that no stone would be left unturned in his administration's multifarious efforts to stimulate the economy and make it work for the greatest good of all Nigerians.

According to a release by his spokesman, Ajuri Ngelale, the President stated this in a meeting held at the State House with the Board of Trustees of the All-Progressives' Congress (APC) Professionals Forum led by former Bauchi State Governor, Mallam Isa Yuguda.

He said "This economy must recover for the good and greatest number of Nigerians, and we are seriously committed to seeing through a change for the better," he said.

To steadily ensure measured growth and enhanced public enlightenment on policy outcomes, President said every effort across sectors would be documented and periodically reviewed for performance verification and public presentation.

"So far, we have taken some baby steps and pushed some aggressive positions," the President told the APC professionals, who had earlier pledged their support for the reforms.

Thanking the President for his bold interventions on the economy, the former Bauchi State Governor said more than two million people have been registered as professionals in different fields since 2018 and stood ready to provide structures for mobilisation and sensitization on government policies.

"Foreign capital is a coward that does not move into unsafe areas, so with your successful interventions so far, we look forward to better security that will attract investors", Yuguda added.

L-R: BOT member, APC Professional, Farida Sada; Vice Chairman APC Professional/former Deputy Governor of Anambra State, Dr Nkem Okeke; Chairman, Isa Yuguda and another BOT member, Mr Ngalari James, briefing State House Correspondents after their meeting with President Bola Tinubu, at the Presidential Villa in Abuja ... yesterday