

ABU student allegedly lures teenager for same-sex relationship, kills him

A 500-level veterinary medicine student of Ahmadu Bello University Zaria, Kaduna State, has been arrested by the Nigeria Security and Civil Defence Corps (NSCDC), in Bauchi State for allegedly killing a 17-year-old.

The suspect, Abdullahi Ibrahim, was said to have lured the teenage secondary school student with his naked picture and enticed him to meet him for a homosexual activity.

The NSCDC Commandant, Bauchi State, Ilelaboye Oyejide, disclosed this to journalists while parading the suspect at the Command's Headquarters. He said that the incident happened in Misau town, Misau Local Government Area of the state.

Oyejide, who stated that the command received information about a case of culpable homicide, said that a 17-year-old secondary student, Umar Usman, a resident of Misau, was found wrapped in a cloth and dumped at Misau bypass.

He said that after receiving information about the incident, he immediately constituted a team of high-powered intelligence officers to go to Misau and investigate it and bring the perpetrators to book.