Operation Hadarin Daji (OPHD) of the Nigerian Army has foiled a massive abduction attempted by bandits in the Tsoi Government area of Zamfara State during which a bandit was neutralized while 15 kidnapped victims were rescued.

In a statement issued by the OPHD Information Officer, Lieutenant Suleiman Omale and made available to newsmen in response to a distress call from the affected area, the troops of the OPHD rushed to the scene and engaged the bandits in a heavy gun battle along a riverine.

It added that “On pursuing the fleeing criminals, our gallant troops neutralized one of the assailants along their withdrawal route, inflicting wounds while gallant troops continued the chase with a view to ensure total victory in the fight.

“During the tactical rescue operation, 8 females and 7 males successfully escaped the clutches of the bandits, emerging unharmed. The area is now secured, bolstered by confidence-building patrols.
