A statement by the institution's Public Relations Officer, Ademola Adesoji, stated that according to reports from the Nigeria Police and the Federal Road Safety Corps (FRSC), the accident was caused by the head-on collision of the two buses, leading to a severe impact that claimed the lives of several passengers.

“Our university management, upon receiving this distressing news, swiftly dispatched a team to the scene to identify and support any of our students involved in the accident.

“Regrettably, we confirm the loss of the students, while one other student, a 200-level student of Medicine and Surgery, survived the accident and is currently receiving medical attention,” Adesoji added.
