be sucking breast before they met their untimely deaths.

The two vehicles, Toyota Corola panel van with Registration No Osun AE 610 EDE and Toyota Liteace with No XA 247 FNN had head-on collision.

According to an eye witness, Mr Morufu Olasupo, the accident occurred as a result of over speeding by the two commercial drivers.

He said the Toyota Corola driver was loaded with bread when the accident took place at Agbugbu Village, between Ife and Osogbo.

Already, the burnt passengers had been taken to Ladoke Akintola University College Hospital for medical attention, while the dead were deposited at its morgue. Commenting on the accident, Acting Sector Commander of the Federal Road Safety Commission, Mr oke Peter, said overloading by the commercial bus caused the accident.

He said the commercial bus driver who died instantly, carried 26, instead of 10 passengers.

ow EFCC Re-arrested Doherty'

of his late mother last weekend.

He was, however, asked to report back yesterday, but did not come to the office as at press time, giving no indications that he might have been detained.

A source at the Lagos State

Ministry of Finance said though Doherty went for questioning at the EFCC office and has not returned, he was not detained.

"There is no cause for worry, we have nothing to fear," the source said.

The EFCC had earlier arrested some directors of the company last month, and in a press statement said it would still arrest some public servants in connection with the Alpha Beta scam.
