

Suspected Yahoo Boy Kills, Buries Girlfriend inside His Room in Bayelsa

Olusegun Samuel

Hell was almost let loose yesterday when the lifeless body of a young girl was discovered in a hurriedly dug shallow grave in a room apartment of his boyfriend in the Okaka area of Yenagoa, the Bayelsa State capital.

Residents of the area who discovered the body buried by a suspected Yahoo boy later apprehended him and almost beat him to death before police came for his rescue and subsequently arrested him.

Many of the residents who trooped out in large numbers expressed anger and anguish over the development, just as a vehicular movement along the busy Okaka road was at standstill for over two hours as people rushed to catch a glimpse of the girl as she was being dug out of the shallow grave by police.

The deceased was said to have been missing for days and the boy friend identified as Joseph denied knowledge of her whereabouts.

The family of the lady reportedly confronted him yesterday morning and demanded he must provide her dead or alive.

After much pressure, he admitted that he killed her and buried the body in a shallow grave dug in his bedroom. The suspect was beaten by the community and later handed over to the police from Ekeki Police Station.

Confirming the sad incident, the spokesman of the Bayelsa State Police Command, Asinim Butswat, said the culprit has been arrested and cooling off his heels at the State Criminal Investigation Department (SCID).