Four days after being declared missing, the mutilated body of a director in the Ondo State Teaching Service Commission (TESCOM), Mr. Gbenga Olofingboyegun, was discovered yesterday in Akure, the state capital.

This is just as gunmen suspected to be kidnappers abducted 32 travellers around Ifon in Ose Local Government Area of Ondo State.

THISDAY gathered that Olofingboyegun, who was the Director of the Department of Research and Statistics in TESCOM, was declared missing on Thursday after he left the office without telling anyone where he was going.

THISDAY also gathered that family and friends had suspected that he was a kidnapped victim and were waiting for the call from his supposed abductors for a ransom payment.

Efforts to trace him were fruitless until his decomposing body was found in Saint Theresa Primary School beside Saint Peter's Unity School in Akure.

A family source, who preferred anonymity, said he was still in the office dress of suit and tie that he wore to the office when his decomposing body was found.
