Immigration Officer Found Dead In Port Harcourt

• Friday, Mar 13, 2009

Officials of the Nigeria Immigration Service (NIS), are now battling to unravel the circumstances surrounding the death of an Immigration officer whose body was discovered at the Eliparanwo area of Obio/Akpor Local Government Area last Tuesday after unknown assailants attacked him and left him in the pool of his blood.

The officer, whose name was given as Kio Inekeyemieba, an assistant superintendent of Immigration, met his death while walking back home on the fateful day.

Confirming the story, spokeswoman for the Rivers State Police Command, Mrs. Rita Inoma-Abbey told The Tide that none of his belongings was removed from him, including his phone.

She said the officer might have been stabbed to death as a knife was left near his body by his killers.

The Tide gathered that the late Inekeyemieba was a cadet-in-training.

In a telephone chat with The Tide yesterday, Public Relations Officer of the Nigeria Immigration Service, Rivers State Command, Mr C.C. Nnamchi said investigations have commenced to track down the killers of the officer.

Mr Nnamchi said, "he is one of us, and that is why we wouldn't fail to investigate his death."

The Immigration Service's PRO expressed sadness over their colleague's death, and remarked that "we must look for a way to check such things before they take all of us like that."
