

Turaki Vanguard leader's brother assassinated

AS the nation continues to witness more and more political killings, Kaduna state has waken up to yet another tragedy where some suspected assassins went to the residence of the North-West youth leader of Turaki Vanguard, Alhaji Muhammad Sirajo Aminchi and killed his senior brother, Alhaji Musa Kallamu.

Daily Triumph correspondent who went to the house of the deceased, Alhaji Aminchi situated at Lere Street of Kawo New Extension in the Kaduna metropolis revealed that the suspected assassins went to the residence of Aminchi Tuesday around 8.10 p.m but luckily for him, he was not around.

The assassins got into the one-room apartment, met his houseboy and asked him the whereabouts of his boss for which he said that he wasn't around and the assassins told him their mission that they were there to kill his boss and later they tied him up with rope and carted him away with the sum of N11,000.

The suspected assassins then went into the main compound of the house and met his senior brother, Alhaji Musa

Contd. on P2

Oil workers warning

OIL workers in Lagos threaten to begin a three-day strike to protest what they called an

At a joint National Executive meeting on August 30 in Benin, the workers of PENGASSAN and NUPENG, agreed to meet its demands.

The workers want an end to the harassment of their members by militant

Contd.

Turaki

Contd. from P1

Kallamu and asked him also about whereabouts of his brother, for which he equally told them he was yet to be back.

The killers told him that, they were there to kill his brother but since he was not around they will fulfil their mission by killing him and before the blink of the eyes, one of them had brought out a pistol and shot him dead.

When Daily Triumph correspondent went to the Kaduna state police command for comment, the Police Public Relations Officer confirmed the incident, saying that they will do everything possible to identify the killers as their men have commenced investigation.