

Expatriate dies in hotel room after sex bout

AGOZINO EMMANUEL

A 35-YEAR-old British expatriate engaged by an oil company in the country (name withheld) has reportedly died in a Lagos hotel room after a sex bout with a young lady.

The lover girl (name withheld) has been arrested by the State criminal investigation department, SCID, Pantl and is helping the police in their investigation of the death which was said to have occurred in the GRA Ikeja where the expatriate was lodging.

The lifeless body of the expatriate had been found in the hotel room last week by a staff who had gone to clean the room after the girl who passed the night with him had left.

The hotel management, according to sources, immediately contacted the deceased relations who, by phone, tricked the girl back to the hotel and the police called in to effect her arrest.

The suspect told Sunday Vanguard in her cell in Pantl that she knew nothing about the expatriate's death.

According to her, when her relationship with the deceased began about two weeks ago, her hope was that it would afford both of them the opportunity to marry.