

Ritual killings: Two suspects nabbed

By Gabriel Enogholase

BENIN—POLICEMEN from the Edo State Police Command yesterday arrested a man and a woman at the King Square, Benin City, on the suspicion that they might be involved in ritual killings around the King Square.

At the time of the arrest, the suspects were found to be living in a small hut near the Central Hospital Mortuary at the King Square.

Vanguard gathered that recently, several dead bodies have been found around the King Square without vital organs such as tongues and genitals.

Edo State Police Command spokesman, Mr. Peter Ogboi who confirmed the arrest, said that the suspects would be interrogated to ascertain whether they have a hand in the suspected ritual killings.

He said the Command has been investigating cases of suspected ritual killings around the King Square.

Though the suspects appeared like lunatics, Mr. Ogboi said only medical experts could determine their state of health.
