

Two human parts dealers lynched

By KOLADE LAREWAJU
Abeokuta

TWO suspected human parts dealers were yesterday burnt to death by an irate mob for allegedly being in possession of human parts. The duo were burnt at about noon

o-Akala

cannot specifically point out one particular success of this administration, nothing. All are in piece meal. All we are saying is that, he should improve on all that he is doing because as far as we are concerned, little or nothing his government has impacted on the lives of the people."

Aderounmu, a native of Ogbomosho like the governor, said it would be his joy if his kinsman returns to the Government House the second time but, according to him, he must work for it.

in Abeokuta, Ogun State capital. Eyewitness account said that three men dressed as if they were mentally unbalanced were accosted by people close to the Olomore fish market in the state capital after their suspicious movement. They were said to have been searched only to find a nylon bag containing some human parts including eyeballs, fingers and private parts on them.

Apparently angry with what was found, the huge crowd began to beat up the men while one of them managed to run under the bridge and made good his escape. The crowd, which then had become feverish, gathered used motor vehicle tyres and set the men ablaze before the arrival of policemen. The human parts allegedly found with the men were also burnt. Ogun State Police public relations officer [PPRO], Mr. Muyiwa Adejobi, who confirmed the story however lamented the burning of the suspects which he said has made investigation difficult.

Lady allegedly murdered by lover

PANDEMONIUM broke out yesterday, at Uso Lane, off Edo Street, Benin-City, after a 28 year-old lady, Helen, was allegedly murdered by her boy friend. Meanwhile, suspected kidnappers, yesterday, abducted a Benin based business mogul, Chief Mike Inegbenebo, at his residence in GRA, Benin City. Sunday Vanguard learnt that he was abducted by a three-man gang as he was driving into his compound.

In another development, the family of one Eguavoen Queen, who is based in the Netherlands, have fled their home after armed thugs invaded their residence in Benin City, last Friday, allegedly on the orders of a lady (names withheld), suspected to be a human trafficker. Sunday Vanguard learnt that trouble started when the said lady who assisted Queen to travel out, asked her to engage into prostitution to enable her regain the money she expended while sponsoring her to Holland. It was said that Queen refused and disappeared from where she was kept, which angered the lady to unleash mayhem on the family here in Benin. Queens mother, Mrs Osayawe, told Sunday Vanguard on telephone that they had to go into hiding, "since she has promised to destroy the entire family if we are not able to pay her money. We are appealing to the police to give us protection".